Wild Chase Halts Man Who 'Wanted To Die'

A young San Rafael man — who "wanted to die," according to arresting officers—is charged with leading Novato police on a chase in excess of 120 miles per hour in a stolen car early this morning.

Before Donald Melvin Frailey, 26, was put into a padded cell at Marin County Jail, Novato police officer Ronald J. Green Jr. said he led two police units on a wild chase up Highway 101, struggled with two officers and assaulted another, kicked in two police cars and tried to goad officers into shooting him.

"This guy wanted us to kill him — there's no doubt about it," Green said.

Frailey, charged this morning with auto theft and felony assault on a police officer, is being held on $5,000 bail. Frailey, whose last known address was 1364 Grand Avenue, San Rafael, was already out on $3,300 bail on a charge of felony assault with a deadly weapon on a San Rafael truck driver June 25.

This morning's drama began at 4:48 a.m. when Richard C. Miller of 40 Sonoma Street, San Rafael, called San Rafael police to report that his 1966 yellow Chevelle had been stolen.

Novato Police Officer Green was on patrol near Nave Lanes when he heard the radio report from San Rafael police describing the stolen car. Almost immediately he spotted it heading north on Highway 101 and took off in pursuit.

Novato Sgt. Walter W. Weidauer joined the chase in a second police car a mile south of Novato.

At Lamont Avenue the fleeing car skidded in the intersection of Lamont and Highway 101, but headed east on Lamont.

The chase at speeds up to 120 miles per hour continued north on Reichert Avenue, through a stop sign at Grant Avenue, west on Sweetser and north again on 101.

About two miles south of the Sonoma County line the driver lost control of the car, skidding until it stopped, facing south in the high speed northbound lane. As Green's car skidded past the stolen car, narrowly missing it, the suspect jumped from the car and ran across the southbound lanes, with both officers giving chase on foot.

"I was yelling for him to halt or I'd shoot," Green said, "and he kept yeliing "Go ahead and shoot me, I have nothing to lose!"

The two officers caught him in the middle of a field after a few hundred yards' chase and after a brief struggle, handcuffed him.

San Rafael Police Sgt. James Carlton pulled up just as the Novato officers handcuffed Frailey. He was placed in Carlton's police car but started kicking at the doors so he was transferred to the Novato patrol which had a screened back seat and taken to jail. On the way in, Green said, he kicked at the car doors and banged his head repeatedly against the car windows.

While being booked at county jail, the suspect, described by Green as being 6 feet, one inch tall and weighing 210 pounds, swung on San Rafael officer Donal Merkley, hitting him in the jaw.

Non-March Pact Defied; Cicero Alert

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Some civil rights groups are dissatisfied with the agreement reached between Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and Chicago officials over bringing open housing to the city and they plan to continue demonstrations.

Promises from city, church and business leaders to promote open housing vigorously led King and some other civil rights leaders to call off plans for further demonstrations and postpone plans to march into suburban all-white Cicero Sunday.

But within hours of the agreement's announcement yesterday, members of the West Side Organization, another integration group, denounced terms of the agreement and announced plans to continue demonstrations.

Robert Lucas, chairman of the Chicago chapter of the Congress of Racial Equality, also issued a statement denouncing the actions of King's group.

Lucas said the CORE chapter today would decide whether to march into Cicero. But Chester Robinson, head of the West Side Organization, said more than 300 members of his group as well as members of six other rights groups would march in Cicero tomorrow afternoon. He declined to identify the other groups, but one is known to be the Black Panthers.

County Water District Accused Of Heel-Dragging On Petitions

West marin residents weary after years of poor water supplies, have accused Marin Municipal Water District of dragging its heels on requests to annex the area.

A petition — signed by more than 90 per cent of the residents of Point Reyes Station, Olema, Inverness and Inverness Park — requesting annexation to the MMWD was presented to general manager William Seeger more than a year ago.

MMWD still hasn't acted on the petition officially. Seeger said the board "is aware" that West Marin wants to be annexed to the water district, "but they haven't discussed it."

He called the petition "informal, exploratory."

"Not true" countered Dr. Leslie R. Webber, Point Reyes Station physician who's spearheaded West Marin's drive to improve water quality.

"We collected those signatures door to door, a great deal of work was done. All the water people were brought out here a year and a half ago, and they

Nine Die In Battle On Streets

TOKYO (UPI) —The teen-age "Red Guard" movement sweeping China is out of hand and Peking is in a state of near anarchy, reliable Japanese reports said today. Nine of the youthful zealots were reportedly shot and killed by citizens trying to end their rampage.

Japanese correspondents said tens of thousands of Chinese civilians had swarmed into the streets to join the teen-agers in carrying out the "great proletarian cultural revolution"—a form of cultural suicide that was destroying all links with the past.

Foreign diplomats expressed fear for their safety and the Soviet Union protested "acts of hooliganism" that included stoning the Russian Embassy. Catholic nuns and priests were humiliated in public and foreign visitors were trying to flee the country.

The "Red Guards" were reported running down the

Bridge Directors Strike Back At Criticisms By McCarthy

Special to the I-J

UKIAH — Directors of the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District struck back at "politicians" who criticized their efforts toward planning for a second deck.

On motion of Edwin Fraser, director from Crescent City, the board agreed to publish an emergency fact sheet for commuters, explaining reasons for their studies aimed at double decking the bridge.

Director Thomas Hardcastle of Novato demanded this as a means of counteracting "scurrilous" newspaper attacks and those of a state legislator — Sen. Jack McCarthy of San Rafael — he claimed is "running for reelection by using the bridge district as a whipping boy."

Hardcastle declared:

"I'm sure commuters of Marin County understand that this board is sincere in trying to accommodate as many of them as efficiently and safely as possible, but these attacks are injurious to our efforts.

"Sen. McCarthy claims congestion isn't on the bridge but is on the approach roads. The State Division of Highways already is budgeting funds to make the Marin approach roads four lanes each way from the Waldo tunnel to the bridge. When this is accomplished congestion will lie directly on the bridge.

"San Francisco city traffic engineers have stated many times that a simple system of changing present streets to one way traffic around the bridge approaches would greatly ease congestion on that side. But these politicians simply ignore the facts," he concluded.

An information program using fact sheets to be handed to commuters will begin within a few days.

It was reported that an average of 85,911 vehicles have used the bridge daily so far during August, an all time high.

General Manager James Adam reported that a closed circuit television system for traffic surveillance has been completed and is proving helpful in dispatching tow cars to stalled automobiles.

Vice President's Son On Honeymoon Minus Agents

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI) —The son of Vice President Hubert Humphrey and his pretty blonde college girl friend were married today.

The wedding of Robert Humphrey and Donna Erickson before 650 guests at St. Olaf's Roman Catholic Church was the social event of the year in the Twin Cities. It was second in national nuptial interest only to the marriage of President Johnson's daughter three weeks ago.

Robert, 22 , and Donna, 21, were married by the Rev. Charles MacDonald, chaplain for the Newman Center at Mankato (Minn.) State College, the couple's alma mater. The ceremony, originally scheduled last month, had been rescheduled when Miss Erickson was stricken with pneumonia.

East Bay Collision Kills Seven

PORT CHICAGO (AP)—Seven persons were killed — four of them members of an Antioch family and the other three sailors—in a violent, head-on collision last night.

Four children were injured.

The scene was such confusion that the dead were not identified until today.

The accident happened at 7 p.m. on a Highway 4 overpass one mile east of the Port Chicago Navy Weapons Station.

The highway patrol said a carload of three sailors, eastbound, pulled out to pass another vehicle and sideswiped it but the two people in that car were not hurt.

The sailors' car then plowed head-on into a westbound car carrying Mr. and Mrs. Tony J. Davi and six children.

The dead:

Sailors Henry Breedings, 21; Richard Baughns, 22, and Willie Carey Jr., 28, all off the ammunition ship Firedrake, docked at Mare Island.

Tony J. Davi, 35, an employee of the U.S. Steel Corp.; his wife, Rita, and their two youngest children, Pauline, 1½, and Nancy, 6 months.

The Davi home is at 1939 Evergreen Ave., Antioch.

Three other Davi children, Theresa, 9; Anthony, 5, and Loraine, 3, and a neighbor, Linda Augustine, 13, were injured.

The Davi family was driving to Kaiser Hospital in Walnut Creek to visit their oldest child, Sandy, 13, who has infectious hepatitis.

The injured children were taken to Concord Community Hospital. Theresa and Anthony were reported in serious condition and Loraine in fair condition.

Rail Strike Cripples Canada

OTTAWA (UPI) — Scores of communities were isolated today and Canada's economic life was strangling from the effects of a nationwide railroad strike.

The nation's telegraph system, operated by Canada's two major railroads, was shut down and ferry service was disrupted, isolating the entire province of Prince Edward Island.

About 110,000 employees of seven railroads, walked out at noon yesterday demanding a 40 per cent increase in pay. They average $2.23 per hour.

The cabinet met to draft back-to-work legislation that will be presented to an emergency session of parliament Monday.

Faith Foils Anxious Scientists

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Hurricane Faith whipped relentlessly toward the lower Bahamas today, putting off a history-making attempt to tame her fury.

Grand Turk Island, site of a U.S. space tracking station, was warned of severe squalls and winds of near hurricane force as Faith spins 40 to 60 miles north of it tonight.

The thinly populated Caicos Islands were also warned to get ready for pounding surf and gales.

The storm churned toward the west-northwest on a path parallel—but 150 miles south—of a whale-shaped area where scientists had hoped to bomb her eye with silver iodide to prove that man can conquer one of nature's mightiest forces.

"Project Stormfury is canceled," said a spokesman at the National Hurricane Center, so far as Hurricane Faith is concerned.

Mass Killing Suspect Appears

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (UPI)—A lovesick gunman accused as the rifle slayer of five friends was whisked from the state jail in secret today for a brief appearance before a Superior Court clerk.

Two deputy sheriffs and two city detectives bundled Arthur Davis, 27, into a cruiser for the five-minute trip to court. UPI learned that extra security measures were taken because of telephone calls from aroused citizens.

Davis, clad in brown denims, stared at the floor as Court Clerk Louis P. Hurley advised him there was no bail in capital cases in Connecticut. Asked if he had a lawyer, Davis mumbled an affirmative. He was advised of the charges and of his right to remain silent.

Police said Davis went to the public-owned, low-rent apartment of Mrs. Mary McClease, 51, in search of her daughter, Gloria, with whom he had been living.

The mother, a worker for the nearby interdenominational United House of Prayer, refused to disclose the girl's whereabouts and Davis allegedly began his murder rampage with a .30-caliber rifle.

Police said his victims were: Mrs. McClease; Mrs. Caroline Sykes, 24, her daughter; Mrs. Sykes' son, Michael, 5; Richard Leathers, 27, of New Haven; and Neil White, 55, of Dover, N.C.

De Gaulle Has Better Time In Ethiopia

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (UPI) —President Charles de Gaulle, preceded by the echoes of cries for independence in France's last African outpost, arrived in ancient Addis Ababa today on the second leg of his round-the-world mission for peace and prestige.

About 30,000 persons including Ethiopian Emperor Haile Selassie, were on hand to cheer the French leader when his plane touched down after a brief flight from Djibouti, French Somaliland.

The welcome in Addis Ababa was in sharp contrast with De Gaulle's reception in the neighboring French possession. Clashes between security forces and nationalists demanding independence left at least two persons dead and about 45 others injured during De Gaulle's two day visit.

De Gaulle, 75, was to spend a leisurely three days in Ethiopia before resuming his tour.

Before leaving Djibouti, De Gaulle promised he would make an important speech "on the dramatic situation caused by the (Viet Nam) war and the danger it represents to peace" during his visit to Cambodia next Thursday.

Dow 1,000? Forget It!

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market took another thumping loss this week, its worst decline since the big plunge of spring 1962.

The market which was heading for the fabulous goal of "Dow 1,000" in early February now was said to be heading for around 750 in the Dow Jones industrial average. That would be the lowest level since November 1963.

The same old worries—tight money, Viet Nam, a possible recession, fear of a squeeze on profits by inflation and higher labor costs, possible devaluation of the British pound—were blamed. These added up to a fundamental lack of confidence in the market.

By the end of the week the Dow industrials had fallen another 24.06 points, closing at 780.56, their lowest reading since Jan. 21, 1964.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks fell 8.9 to 280.1, their lowest figure since Nov. 29, 1963, when they closed at 279.6.

The 200 points that the Dow industrials lost in the spring of 1962 was now exceeded. The average had plunged 215.59 since it reached its record high of 995.15 last Feb. 9. At that time, no reasonable observer would deny that "Dow 1,000" was only a matter of time. Now, the gradual upward progress of more than two years has been wiped out.

For example, a share of American Telephone & Telegraph common—the most widely held stock—which cost $62.50 on Feb. 9, closed Friday at $50.62. Other blue chips also joined the decline. General Motors has dropped from $105.88 on Feb. 9 to $71.37; U.S. Steel from $52.75 to $39.37.

At no time were there any clear signs of panic, of the so-called "selling climax" which market technicians believe is needed in order to prepare the ground for a sustained recovery. Volume this week was 40,501,854 shares compared with 32,632,260 the week before.

Of 1,568 issues traded, 1,366 declined and 132 advanced.

The trading week began with the good weekend news of the settlement of the 43-day strike against five major airlines. Stocks were firm to higher at the market opening Monday but soon began to drop.

Pessimism was increased by news of the United Auto Workers Union request for an immediate raise for skilled workers, a request refused by the industry. By the end of the day the Dow industrials had fallen below the once "magic" 800 line for the first time since Feb. 27, 1964.

On Tuesday there was a rally at the start, which was soon erased, and another rally in early afternoon, which also failed. The market declined again.

Wednesday saw a vigorous advance, the strongest since July 6. It kindled hopes on Wall Street that the list could begin "building a base" for recovery. Glamour stocks were prominent in the rise.

LBJ Handed Housing Help

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Johnson is expected to waste no time in signing into law a $4.7 billion measure to ease the money pinch now making it costly and difficult to finance a home.

The House, warned that construction could come to "a grinding halt" by fall without the money transfusion, pushed the bill on to the White House yesterday by a 234 to 1 vote.

The bill is a technical move to increase the amount of mortgage loan money available by authorizing the Federal National Mortgage Assn. to buy an additional $4.76 billion in mortages from banks and savings and loan firms. The money thus freed can be reloaned by these institutions for new construction.

Johnson hailed the authorization as part of a legislative package "designed to protect the American home buyer, the American borrower, and the American saver from unwise and unsound competitive practices."

Odyssey's Over For Teen-ager, His Dog

PORTOLA, (UPI — Thomas Edward Pohle, 15, a runaway who gave Colorado authorities the slip earlier this week, was home with his parents today after being plucked from a Western Pacific freight train.

Portola Police Chief Robert Harris picked up young Pohle yesterday in this Feather River Canyon town near the Nevada border.

Harris took the youth to the Plumas County sheriff's office in Quincy where he was held in jail until his parents picked him up.

It marked the end of a freight train odyssey for Tom and his constant companion, a Collie dog.

The youth was picked up earlier this week in Fort Collins, Colo., for hopping freights and was put on a passenger train for home. But he got off the train when it reached Denver's Union Station and disappeared.

Railroad officials said the youth talked his way off the train, saying he was going to visit his grandmother. He has no grandmother in Denver.

He put up no resistance when Harris picked him up. The police chief acted on a tip from a person who recognized the boy and his dog from television pictures he had seen of them.

Pohle demonstrated his concern for his dog in Fort Collins when police put him in jail and prepared to put the Collie in the city pound. Tom used all the money he had left to pay for the dog's keep at an animal hospital. He said he was afraid the dog might get sick in the pound.

'VERY NICE' BANDIT

Gunman Lets Family Shop, Go To Church

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A gunman held a family of six hostage for 21 hours in their apartment yesterday, but a reasonably good time was had by all.

"He was a very nice man," said Lilly Joanne Clements, 17, one of four children of Dennis and Florence Clements held in their apartment near the downtown area.

He allowed his hostages to come and go individually but warned them he would kill them should they go to police. He permitted the children to go to Bible school and to go shopping and allowed Clements to visit a local tavern.

Clements later told police that the man had held up a nearby pharmacy late Thursday night and was looking for a place to hide while the police searched the neighborhood.

Clements, who is a Negro, said he and his white abductor talked much of the night and day.

"I told him about my troubles —being ill and unable to work— and he said 'that's too bad. I feel sorry for you.'" Clements said.

At one time, the gunmun entertained his own guests—two women—in the apartment. He counted his $500 loot from the holdup and also took apart his Luger gun at one point.

Clements and the bandit finally left 10 p.m. yesterday and the gunman boarded a west-bound bus.

"We shook hands," said Clements 50, "and he said to me 'you're a good man.'"

LBJ Taking Birthday Off After Fast-paced Junket

The 400 yards is the distance between the small building where Lyndon Baines Johnson was born and the handsome building where he will spend his birthday with his wife, friends and relatives.

It's what the President wanted most. "Corny, perhaps," he said. But this was it.

"Just going out with Lady Bird and walking alone, talking and remembering, with no one listening, no cameras, no one saying, 'Here, it is time to do this.'"

Johnson, who counts his private life as "ideal," spent Friday immersed in the problems of his public life, and deep in the crowds he lives and from which he seems to draw strength.

Moving like a man campaigning for county sheriff, Johnson stumped through stops in three Western states—appealing to the Russians to recognize their responsibilities to end the cold war, darting into crowds screaming their birthday greetings, and at one point, stopping to eat frozen custard.

He stopped at Pocatello and Idaho Falls, Idaho; Denver, Colo., and Tulsa and Pryor, Okla., during his jetborne "nonpolitical" tour, his third in a month.

The President grew more folksy with the crowds that greeted him as the day wore on. After his last appearance, at Pryor, Okla., he told a crowd. "I'll have a little light supper and then go down the road before it gets too dark."

Johnson arrived at the ranch shortly before midnight after his strenuous day of speaking, hand-shaking and baby-kissing from an antiseptically clean atomic power plant near Idaho Falls, to an economic revival project outside Pryor.

He was on display with six governors—three Democratic, three Republican; six senators, also divided by party three and three, plus at least a dozen House members, 10 of whom were fellow Democrats.

Thus he could maintain at stop after stop that his travels were as non-partisan as the flag. This, of course, did not apply to Republican Gov. Henry Bellmon of Oklahoma who wired Johnson in advance of his trip that he should reserve his nonpolitical trips until after the November voting.

Johnson twitted the governor in Tulsa and Pryor, all done in high humor but with a message as pointed as a Cherokee Indian arrow.

At other times during the day, Johnson was made a member of the Cherokee tribe and given the Indian name of "The Eagle."

He received a brilliantly colored war bonnet, a peace pipe that he did not smoke, a collection of plaques, scrolls and several birthday cakes. His wife, Lady Bird, was presented with everything from small trees to large roses.

streets, grabbing people, raiding shops, carrying placards demanding "wipe out revisionism," "wipe out capitalism," "tear down paper tigers," and singing new revolutionary songs.

All forms of "bourgeois Westernism" were being attacked. Youths with Western style haircuts were forcibly seized and their heads shaved. Women with trousers considered too tight had their trousers slit or cut off at the knees.

The Soviet news agency Tass said nine members of China's new "revolutionary youth" had been killed by citizens striking back at their Peking rampage and Hong Kong mentioned bloodshed but there were no details.

The official New China news agency also reported — with approval of the "Red Guard" movement. It said the campaign is aimed at "the old four —old philosophy, old culture, old customs and old traditions."

But the Peking-based correspondent of the Japanese Mainichi Shimbun, one of Japan's most respected newspapers, reported the "Red Guards" were being jointed by tens of thousands of laborers, government employees and housewives, all wearing red armbands.

Mainichi described conditions as a "state of anarchy" with the cultural revolution reaching a pitch of religious fervor unmatched by anything in decades in any country.

Thousands Riot In Tokyo Slums

TOKYO (AP) — About 2,000 residents in a Tokyo slum district staged a 3½ hour riot today, apparently dissatisfied over police handling of a traffic accident.

Police said the rioters smashed windows of pinball parlors with stones, set fire to rubbish containers, and tied up traffic for more than an hour.

About 1,500 riot police were rushed to the scene.

recommended that the most appropriate approach to our water difficulties was to make an attempt to annex to the MMWD.

"The plans and boundaries of the areas to be annexed have been most precisely laid out by engineers, a map has already been drawn up.

"I have been down to the MMWD offices every week or two for about a year. At last I got tired. Then, in May this year, I was told MMWD was in a position now to proceed with annexation, that it would cost perhaps $10 to $20 per acre."

"It's a grand and glorious delay and retreat," he said.

On August 16 Point Reyes Station's water supply — which comes from a company owned by James J. Downey of Penngrove—ran out completely, with residents driving to Inverness to fill jugs of water.

In May West Marin School closed when water pressure dropped so low toilets wouldn't flush.

Dr. Webber said water faucets run dry in the area "three or four times every year."

Downey's Point Reyes Water Company was the subject of a California Public Utilities Commission hearing in June 1964. At the end of the hearing commissioners ruled that Downey must make a series of improvements, stating that facilities and methods "are not adequate to assure a continuous supply of potable water at adequate pressures."

Genl. Mgr. Seeger denied charges that MMWD is dragging its heels on the annexation. "I have written and told them we are getting our policy together. We've been working on the policy for a year and a half now. The policy will probably be adopted at the first board meeting in September.

"Our policy is we'll annex anyone who wants to be annexed."

Dr. Webber said West Marin residents are eager and anxious for the long-awaited annexation.

Donna, an education major from Hampton, Minn.—A rural community with a population of about 300—was graduated last June. Robert plans to obtain his business degree next spring.

The bride, whose father died last year, was given in marriage by her uncle and godfather, Larry Doffing.

Robert is not Catholic, as is his bride-to-be, but recent changes in church law allow "mixed couples" to be married in the church with an optional Mass.

After the church ceremony, members of the wedding party went to the vice president's summer home at Waverly, 40 miles west of here, for brunch.

After the reception the couple will take off for their honeymoon without the watchful eyes of the Secret Service. The protection of the Secret Service is not extended to children of the vice president.

Bolinas Board Sets Meeting

Suggestions by the Marin County Board of Supervisors on how Bolinas can solve some of its problems will be discussed by directors of Bolinas Community Inc., at a special meeting Sept. 9 at 8 p.m. in the community center.

Last month, the board accepted a report by county administrative analyst John L. Gibb outlining the problems created by the popularity of Bolinas as a resort area.

These included public access verses private ownership, safe-camping, underage drinking, profanity, the need for more garbage disposal facilities and extended harbor development.

Missing Boatman Search Dropped

The Coast Guard has abandoned the search for Louis A. Yuvan of San Rafael, whose boat was found "going in circles" with no one aboard yesterday morning.

Cmdr. Robert Lemmon, chief of Coast Guard Search and Rescue, made the decision to abandon the search because the area had been thoroughly covered. The 26-foot cabin cruiser, "Y's Gal," was found at 8:35 a.m. near the entrance to Petaluma Creek.

Yuvan, who lives at 20 Fairhills Drive, San Rafael, was last seen at 6 p.m. Thursday when he left Loch Lomond Yacht Harbor alone aboard his boat. Mrs. Yuvan reported him missing at 1:05 a.m. yesterday, and the search started immediately.

U.S. Unleashes Heaviest Air Attacks In Viet Nam

SAIGON (UPI) —U.S. planes staged the heaviest raids of the war on North Viet Nam yesterday flying a record 156 bombing missions on Communist supply depots and communication lines. The total was 10 higher than the previous record set only last Wednesday.

American spokesmen in Saigon, meanwhile, reported today U.S. Marines killed 319 Communists in two continuing offensives against Communist forces near Da Nang.

The spokesmen said Air Force, Navy and Marine planes struck 18 targets near Dong Hoi, Thanh Hoa and Vinh in North Viet Nam's southern panhandle. No planes were reported lost on the missions.

The military no longer discloses how many planes were sent against the North in any particular day. But a mission is by at least tow planes and quite often four.

U.S. spokesmen said 37 Air Force jets took part in the action against Viet Cong positions 30 miles north of Saigon yesterday in which two planes strafed and dropped napalm bombs on American infantrymen. Several Americans were killed and more than two score wounded.

The spokesmen said bad weather barred bombing over most of the country above the panhandle. But despite that spokesmen called moderate antiaircraft fire, the pilots reported hitting 17 oil depots, destroying 39 barges and damaging warehouses, antiaircraft sites and five bridge approaches.

In the Marine actions, Leatherneck troops fought off a fanatic hand grenade and satchel charge in Operation Prairie yesterday about 380 miles north of Saigon, killing 73 Communists. American casualties were described as "light." The toll raised the number of Communists killed in the three-day operation to 212.

The other marine action, called Allegheny, involved troops of the 2nd Battalion fighting Communist forces 370 miles north of Saigon. They reported killing 107 enemy soldiers in a five day battle that included the capture of a Communist "war college" last Wednesday.

The Allegheny Marines reported killing nine snipers yesterday. Marine casualties were described as "light." The 2nd Battalion commander, Lt. Col. Victor Johanesian of New York City, reported overhearing Chinese voices during an enemy broadcast, but no Chinese bodies were reported found.

A Birthday Party For Martha Raye

FT. CAMPBELL, Ky. (AP) — Troopers of the 101st Airborne Division thought it was time to repay Martha Raye, who had entertained them and their buddies in Viet Nam, so they gave her a birthday party.

town itself has also asked the callup.

Elsewhere on the racial scene:

More than 1,000 whites, most of them teen-agers, gathered in the Milwaukee, Wis., suburb of Wauwatosa to watch and jeer a Negro group's eighth consecutive night of civil rights demonstrations.

A circle of policemen isolated the demonstrators from spectators, who taunted the demonstrators as they continued their protest against what they call restrictive membership policies of the Fraternal Order of Eagles.

Gov. Warren P. Knowles had offered to send National Guard troops if the situation got out of hand, but police kept the crowd under control and sprinkler systems were used by residents of the plush neighborhoods to keep persons off lawns.

In New York, the New York Times reported that the Internal Revenue Service has filed a $22,500 tax lien against CORE. The paper said the lien was for income and social security taxes allegedly deducted from the pay of CORE employees during the first half of the year but not transmitted to the government.

In New Orleans, La., a federal judge ordered Plaquemines Parish, home of fiery segregationist Leander Perez, to desegregate its schools next week.

Fire Districts Merger Proposed

Formation of a county service area to provide fire service and dissolution of eight existing fire protection districts in Marin was recommended late yesterday by the county administrator's office.

The recommendation, prepared by Asst. County Administrator John F. Barrows, also says that a service area covering the unincorporated areas of the county should be created to pay 70 per cent of the cost of operating the county sheriff's department.

The recommendation was the result of several months of study by the county-city services committee, consisting of four elected officials.

Barrows asked supervisors to schedule hearings on formation of the service areas. A protest by 10 per cent of the registered voters can force an election on their formation.

Elections would also have to be held in each of the eight fire protection districts that Barrows recommends be dissolved.

The county service area for fire protection would cover all unincorporated areas except for those districts that provide fire service as one of several other functions. The Marinwood and Terra Linda community services districts. The Inverness Public Utilities District might also qualify if it is providing other services, Barrows said.

Barrows said that the equipment and manpower of the districts to be dissolved would be incorporated with the county fire department to provide the men and facilities for the service area.

He did not say what would happen to other assets or indebtedness of the districts.

Under a county service area, various zones can be established, and separate taxes levied according to the services received. This would provide better taxing equity for both police and fire protection, Barrows said.

The city-county committee said that police protection inequities exist. Tomales, for instance, sets an average of two patrols a day, while streets in incorporated cities receive about 4-5 patrols a day.

City taxpayers are paying for their own protection and also helping to pay a major portion of the bill for rural patrols.

The committee said about 30 per cent of the sheriff's budget is of equal benefit to both city and county taxpayers. This is the portion for support of the county jail and such functions as records and identification which are of aid to all.

As in the proposed county service area for fire protection, the police service area could have various rates according to services received.

Barrows said that recommendations arose out of the committee's discussions, but he is not sure the committee would agree with all his conclusions.

Food Price Juggling May Mark Raise, Heighten Drop

Price changing in the supermarket is a stratagem, according to an article in a recent issue of Farm Index, published by the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture. Varying the prices is not simply a matter of price cutting. Nor is it the normal response to changes in cost and demand.

"It calls for the systematic raising of prices as well as lowering of prices," says the article. "Prices can be varied in such a way that both the average price of any single item and the average price level of all items are the same over time. The result would be just the same if no price change had taken place at all."

The article goes on to say: "A retailer juggles the number of units sold for a given price for a variety of reasons. Switching an item from 'two for 33 cents' to '18 cents each' . . . may obscure a price increase. It works the other way, too. Changing from '18 cents each' to 'two for 33 cents' gives the store a 3-cent reduction to feature instead of a 1½ cent decrease.

Pesticides in food will be more tightly controlled under a new federal program. Many pesticides were previously accepted for label registration on a "no residue" basis because the residue in food could not be detected by methods then available. Now, more sensitive methods are in use and residues can be detected. The Public Health Service will participate in reviewing any proposed uses of pesticides from the standpoint of human health.

Camouflaging Figure Faults Means Pattern Change First

By EUNICE FARMER

If you have one hip that is noticeably higher than the other, you must change your pattern before cutting your garment. I would also suggest you avoid any large plaids or stripes in the fabric, they would only call attention to this figure defect.

The high hip is usually more rounded also and must be changed on the side seam as well. Build up the curve at the waistline, beginning at the center front and curving about 1 inch higher by the time you reach the side seam. This should be done in the skirt front and back. Also, add a little extra to the side seam, instead of the usual curve, keep the side seam for the high hip a little more straight. It will be necessary to ease this area onto the waistband so that it will form the necessary curve and shaping for your figure.

This and many other pattern changes are carefully explained and sketched in my newest leaflet "Your Pattern and You." You may obtain your copy by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents to Eunice Farmer in care of the Independent-Journal.

Mrs. Betty Swoverland, Ladoga, Ind. is this weeks' Tailor Trix board winner for the following suggestion.

"Alas and unhappily, we do sometimes expand about the waist and belts to match dresses become too small. Take the plastic, leather, or self-fabric belts and cut off 8 inches from each end. Replace the center section with something else that will go with the dress, such as grosgrain ribbon, straw-like braid, contrasting fabric or whatever. Finish the joining neatly and the belt will look professional with its smart colorful new center section, using the original buckle and eyelets section. Best of all, it fits again!"

FROM THE LETTERS you have sent met explaining the difficulty in fitting one section into another, especially where there is ease marked on the instructions. I must remind you once again, how important it is to watch and respect each and every single notch and mark on your pattern. Always mark the shoulder mark for sleeves, the shoulder mark on both the collar and collar facing and many other spots you might think unimportant. A pattern is similar to a puzzle. Each part is designed to fit correctly if you follow the instructions.

Often you have written me that when something doesn't seem to come out right, you have figured the pattern company made a mistake and proceed to cut off whatever doesn't seem to fit. This is sheer disaster. Instead of this, back up and see what you can do to make it work out. The beginners must understand each and every mark. The more advanced student often becomes careless because of the little knowledge you have. Pattern companies are just like banks—they very seldom make a mistake!

DEAR EUNICE FARMER:

My daughter will be going away to school next month. Because of one very high hip, she simply can't get ready-made clothes to fit. I've never been able to make anything for her unless she was there to try it on a dozen times. How can I make her clothes when she will be so far from home

MRS. J. S.

DEAR MRS. J. S.:

I would run, not walk to the very nearest department store or fabric shop and get her one of the wonderful new dressmaker forms I have been praising for the last six months. It is made of polyurethane foam plastic and is soft, pliable and indestructible. The poplin cover is fitted on your daughter, then when the cover is zipped on to the foam plastic form, the exact length of dresses accurately also. Should she gain or lose a little weight, the seams can easily be altered.

If two of you in the same family are approximately the same basic size, you can also get separate covers to zip on the form. You'll save making mistakes in choice of pattern as well as in the fitting because you can pin the pattern on your form before you cut the fabric out.

It has been a summer of travel for the John A. Lennons of Mill Valley covering some 9,000 miles. ## Labels On Frozen Meat Under Study Labels of frozen meat products are under review by the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture because of consumer complaints about misleading pictures on packages of products such as "gravy and sliced beef," etc. USDA says illustrations on labels will have to show accurately the relationship of meat to gravy. Also, if the words "beef" and "gravy" or "sauce" appear on the label in the same size and style of type, the product will have to contain not less than 35% cooked beef (30% shrink).

Sitter Contradicts Report

Says Dead Child Bright, Not Unhappy

By CAROL MARSH

Charlotte Harris of Lagunitas, frequent baby sitter for the 16-month-old Greenbrae boy who was beaten to death last week, yesterday said the county welfare department had misrepresented her conversations concerning the baby.

Mrs. Elizabeth Coyle, deputy program director for the Marin County Social Services (Welfare) Department, last week said Mrs. Harris had "complained repeatedly" that the child, Timothy Wayne Buckley, was being neglected.

Mrs. Coyle said Mrs. Harris told the department the child should be taken from its mother, and complained that the boy "cried a lot," was unresponsive, was overweight and not properly fed or diapered.

On the other hand, Mrs. Coyle emphasized that never did Mrs. Harris or anyone else report any sign of physical mistreatment of the child.

Mrs. Harris said yesterday that she called the welfare department only once -- when she learned the department was trying to locate the child, who was in her care.

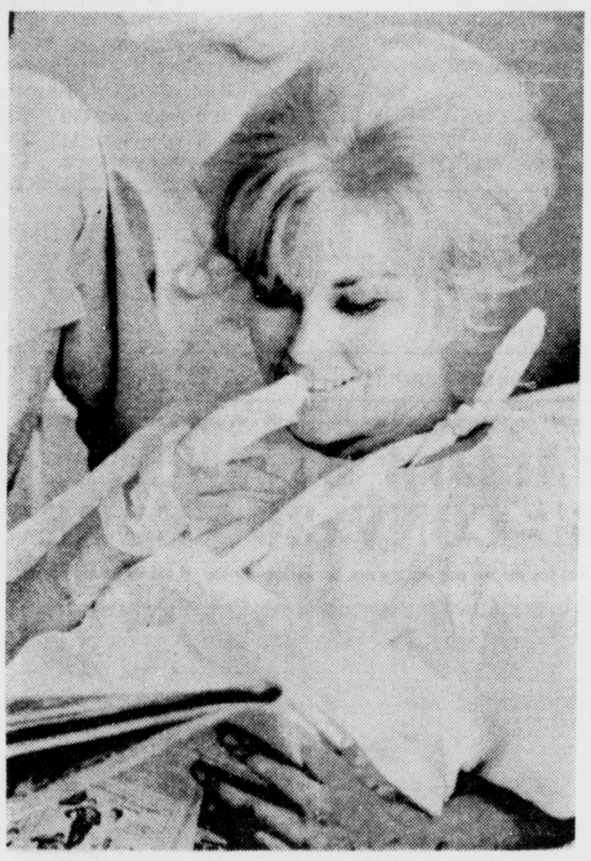
She called and made an appointment with Mimi Michaelson, social worker on the case.

Mrs. Harris said she told Miss Michaelson of once seeing a bruise and burn on the child's leg—a wound which she said the mother, Mrs. Roberta Buckley of 70 Lucky Drive, Greenbrae, had explained by saying the child had pulled a hot electric appliance onto himself.

Mrs. Harris said she never felt or said the child should be permanently taken from his mother. She said Mrs. Buckley was unemployed at the time, and she thought the child should be put in a foster home until Mrs. Buckley could properly support him.

As for the child crying a lot and being unresponsive, Mrs. Harris said: "He was one of the happiest children I've ever seen. He never cried, and he was very responsive to me."

Mrs. Coyle, when told that Mrs. Harris had contradicted her version of the department's relations with Mrs. Harris on almost every point, said, "Mrs. Harris must be very frightened."



INJURED BUT SMILING

Happy to be alive today is actress Kim Novak, 33, in a Santa Maria hospital with a lacerated hand and a finger that required 15 stitches. Her station wagon lost a wheel yesterday, turning end over end twice. Neither Miss Novak nor her two cats and two dogs accompanying her were seriously injured. (UPI Telephoto)

TIMOTHY BUCKLEY
Not unresponsive

The child died Aug. 18 at Marin General Hospital from head injuries. A doctor said the beatings, which left the child's body covered with bruises, had been inflicted over a three-week period.

Eugene A. Boehm, Mrs. Buckley's common-law husband, has been charged with beating the baby; Mrs. Buckley has been charged with failing to report the beatings.

Mother's Hearing In Baby Death Off To Next Month

Preliminary hearing for Mrs. Roberta Marie Buckley, 21, of Greenbrae on a charge of failing to report the fatal beatings of her 16-month-old son, was continued yesterday in Marin Municipal Court until Sept. 30.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Gary Thomas said the reason was that his office will seek a Marin Superior Court order for her to testify against her common-law husband, Eugene A. Boehm, and be granted immunity in her own case.

Preliminary hearing for Boehm, charged with beating the child, Timothy Wayne Buckley, was continued until 10 a.m. Tuesday.

Judge Leonard A. Thomas yesterday released Mrs. Buckley on her own recognizance. Reduction of the $7,875 bail had previously been denied. Boehm is in jail in lieu of $7,875 bail.

Juniper Rust Found Unique To Marin

By RICHARD LYTTLE

Marin County has Gymnosporangium Confusum, and no other city, county, state or nation in the Western Hemisphere can make that statement.

Still, Marin County does not want Gymnosporangium Confusum.

You guessed it. It's a disease.

It is the Hawthorne - Juniper rust discovered in the Blithedale Canyon area of Mill Valley last spring. At the time, no one was able to identify the fungus.

The life cycle of the fungus requires the juniper for the Winter season and the flowering hawthorn for the Summer. Damage shows up on the hawthorn. Leaves and twigs die.

County Agricultural Commissioner Richard T. Straw reported yesterday that the fungus had finally been positively identified by Prof. F. D. Kern of Pennsylvania State University.

Reason for that Latin word "confusum" in the name is that the fungus is often confused with Gymnosporangium Fuscum, not so rare in the Western Hemisphere.

Straw said the State Department of Agriculture has put an "A" rating on the fungus, which means a quarantine area should be established until it is eradicated.

This will probably mean that the Tamarix Junipers in Blithedale Canyon will have to be destroyed.

Straw said a full survey of the area should be made first, but removal and destruction of junipers could be completed by next Feb. 1.

"Fortunately it is a small area," Straw said.

The same fungus is common in central Europe and has been found in England, Morocco, the Soviet Union, and in the Himalayas, Straw said.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Early Treatment Of Sprained Ankle Will Avoid Added Pain

VAN DELLEN

Of all joints, the ankle is the most easily sprained; the knee and wrist follow in order. The hip and shoulder are more flexible, hence dislocation of these joints rather than sprain is more common after injury.

In the usual sprain the tissues surrounding the joint are damaged because they have been overstretched. The ligaments and joint capsule may be torn and in some instances the blood vessels and nerves are severed. Occasionally the pull is so severe a segment of bone is dislodged over the area where it is attached to the ligament.

EARLY TREATMENT of all sprains will save days of discomfort and disability. Swelling and bleeding a brought under control more quickly when the injured structure is elevated and packed in ice. The ideal management of sprained ankle is to go to bed immediately, elevate the leg on several pillows, and cool the region with ice. As soon as pain subsides an adhesive or elastic bandage is applied.

The injection of Novocain directly into the injured tissues is an alternate remedy. Thereafter the individual resumes activity, mild at first, followed by as much as can be tolerated without discomfort. It helps to walk with a cane or crutch.

NOW AND THEN the physician finds it necessary to apply a cast. This measure may appear drastic but it does afford absolute protection and rest. While the part is immobilized, healing takes place rapidly. When pain lingers, physical therapy, heat., massage, and manipulation may stimulate healing. Heat at this stage is not harmful because the ranger of bleeding has passed. Soaking the ankle in warm water or applying an electric pad are excellent remedies. An X-ray should be taken to make sure that the bone is not fractured.

ARM AND FINGER SORENESS

L. S. writes: I have a sore arm and sometimes my fingers feel as though there are needles sticking into the ends of them. Is this an indication of heart trouble?

REPLY

This is a possibility, but causes such as neuritis and poor circulation are more likely candidates. Now and then the sensation is traced to pressure upon the nerve or artery somewhere between the neck and wrist.

PREGNANCY AND EXERCISE

A reader writes: Every morning I exercise for 30 minutes to a program on television. Can you tell me if it is or will be dangerous to continue the practice if I am pregnant?

REPLY

Probably not. Some of these exercises can be done, whereas others are inadvisable. This applies mainly to the later months of pregnancy. The safest exercise for a pregnant woman is walking.

EYE HEMORRHAGES

W. I. writes: Will you please write something about hemorrhages of the eyes in a diabetic?

REPLY

Such hemorrhages usually are caused by rupture of the blood vessels back of the eyes. The artery is likely to be brittle or hardened. They are detected by a physician when he looks through the pupil with an ophthalmoscope.

NOT CONTAGIOUS

E. H. writes: Is glaucoma contagicus?

REPLY

No. In this condition the pressure within the eyeball is increased and the retina and optic nerve may suffer when the tension is too high. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on glaucoma.

Assault Against Wife Charged In Arraignment

John G. Grace, 54, was arraigned in Marin Municipal Court yesterday on charges of battery of his wife, Beverly Grace, and obstructing two sheriff's deputies in their duties.

Visiting Judge Robert J. Duggan of El Cerrito - Kensington Judicial District, Contra Costa County, scheduled plea entry for 1:30 p.m. next Friday.

Grace allegedly assaulted his wife at their home, 27 Curry Lane, Sausalito, last Wednesday, then obstructed Deputies Gary Bartolotti and Raymond Von Savoye while they aided Sausalito police.

The defendant originally was booked on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon on the officers. They said they were knocked over by Grace's car.

Neither suffered serious injury.

MONT MARIN!

What is it?

Where is it?

It's a group of extremely interesting new homes that aren't quite finished yet. We don't usually invite visitors while we're still working. But things are in pretty good shape and we thought you might like to see them before the Grand Opening crowds hit. We're building six model homes in various sizes and shapes, and packing them with honest, up-to-date features. No gimmicks. One very exciting feature is our new approach to kitchens (we call it The Flower Room Kitchen) that we think is worth a visit all by itself. Drop up. We're high on a hill with sweeping views overlooking the lovely Lucas Valley Road. (Incidentally, prices at Mont Marin! will range from $31,950 to $41,950.)

MARIN COUNTY DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS, SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA
NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

Sealed Proposals will be received by the Clerk of the Board of Supervisors of the County of Marin, State of California, until 10:00 A.M., September 12, 1966, for:

Construction of a drainage gallery and necessary appurtenances to be constructed in a slide area on Red Rock Way near San Rafael, California. The gallery will extend about 176 feet along Red Rock Way and into adjacent private property.

The work shall be done in accordance with official plans and specifications prepared in reference thereto which may be seen at the office of the Department of Public Works, County of Marin. Request for forms or information shall be addressed to the Department of Public Works, County of Marin, Civic Center, San Rafael, California.

Plans, Specifications (but not including Standard Specifications or other documents included by reference), and Proposal Forms may be obtained by prospective bidders upon payment of a deposit of Ten Dollars ($10.00) cash or check made payable to the Department of Public Works, County of Marin, to guarantee safe return of the plans and specifications within ten (10) days after bid opening. Failure to so return the plans and specifications will cause forfeiture of the deposit to the County.

All bids must be submitted on the Proposal Form obtained from the Director of Public Works and shall be accompanied by a Proposal Guaranty of at least ten per cent (10%) of the bid. Guaranties shall be in the form of a certified or Cashier's Check or a Bidder's Bond. ## ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, Aug. 27, the 239th day of 1966 with 126 to follow.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase. The morning stars are Mars, Venus, Saturn and Jupiter. There are no evenings stars.

On this day in history:

In 1660, the published books of John Milton were burned.

In 1859, the first oil well in the United States was drilled near Titusville, Penn.

In 1928, the Kellogg-Briant pact to outlaw wars was signed by 15 nations at Paris.

In 1963, miners David Fellin and Henry Throne were rescued from a mine at Sheppton, Penn. They had been trapped for 14 days.

A thought for the day—German philosopher Arthur Schopenhauer said: "Do not shorten the morning by getting up late; look upon it as the quintessence of life, as to a certain extent sacred."

HOW TO PLAY
WINNING BRIDGE
By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

It's Important To Watch For What An Opponent Doesn't Do

As an experienced bridge player you pay a great deal of attention to what the opponents do. That's very good, and you're entitled to full credit for your alertness.

You don't get any medals, however, unless you also pay attention to what the opponents don't do.

Opening lead — ◇ 10

West opened the ten of diamonds, and East won with the jack. East continued with the ace and king of diamonds, and thought for a moment or two.

East then led the ace of hearts, followed by the four of hearts.

South was relieved that East had not led the fourth diamond. Also South was surprised.

What's more, South was suspicious. Why on earth had East refrained from leading the queen of diamonds?

The more South thought about it the more it was clear that East knew that his partner could not over-ruff the dummy—and that East did not want South to have this information.

In short, South came to the conclusion that East had all five of the missing trumps.

DEEP FINESSE

South therefore led a club to dummy's king and returned a trump. East played low, hoping that South would take the first trump trick with a top trump.

Instead, South won a finesse with the seven of trumps!

South led a club to dummy's ace and returned a club. East ruffed with the jack of spades, and South over-ruffed with the queen. Now South led a high heart and let East ruff.

Declarer was then sure to make his contract with the rest of the spades.

SPIRITUAL ENRICHMENT

Marin Crusade Planned By Sixteen Churches

A two-week "Christ for Marin Crusade," sponsored by 16 churches in the county will be launched Monday at 7:30 p.m. at First Baptist Church, Mill Valley.

Baptists, Nazarenes and Assembly of God and Evangelical Free Churches are pooling their resources for the crusade, which is open to all faiths.

Central speaker of the series of events planned will be Dr. John E. Hunter of Kendall, England, Biblical scholar, author and a member of the writing staff of Gospel Light Publications.

In keeping with Dr. Hunter's participation, this year's crusade will differ from those in the past, according to the sponsoring churches, in that emphasis will be "less on evengelicism and more on spiritual enrichment."

Dr. Hunter will interpret the Bible and speak on its relevance to problems of contemporary life at churches throughout the county.

The schedule of 7:30 p.m. services for the first week is: Monday, First Baptist Church, Mill Valley; Tuesday, Bethel Baptist, Novato; Wednesday, Northland Assembly of God, Novato; Thursday, Church of the Nazarene, San Anselmo; Friday, Valley Baptist Church, San Rafael.

On Sept. 4, there will be 9:45 and 11 a.m. services at Chapel No. 1, Hamilton Air Force Base, and a 3 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. service at Marin Evangelical Free Church, San Rafael.

Sept. 5 through 9, services will be at 7:45 p.m. at Chapel No. 1, Hamilton Air Force Base.

World Group On Television

Highlights of the World Council of Churches' recent 15-day Geneva conference on church and society will be televised tomorrow.

The half-hour report on the conference will be presented on CBS' channel 5 at 8:30 a.m. under the title, "Geneva '66: A Call To Action."

The broadcast will be narrated by British Member of Parliament Peter Kirk, delegate to and chairman of the conference section on "The Nature and Function of the State in a Revolutionary Age."

The Geneva session was the first on church-society relations since the World Council's parent organization met in Oxford in 1937. Conducted from July 12 through 26, it brought together some 400 representatives from 87 countries.

In addition to Kirk, others on the broadcast will include Dr. Margaret Mead, American anthropologist; Barbara Ward, British economist; Bola Ige, Anglican lawyer from Nigeria; Dr. Max Kohnstamm of the Netherlands; Prof. Yoskiaki of Japan, and Dr. Emanuel Mesthene of Harvard University.

Adventist Youths At Military Camp

A unique military encampment for conscientious objectors is in progress this week and next on a 100-acre site at Soquel in Santa Cruz County.

Some 150 draft-age young men of the Seventh-day Adventist faith from California and Arizona are taking part in the military exercises. Although they refuse to bear arms or take human life, the potential draftees are training vigorously to enter the armed forces as good soldiers.

Among those attending is Wally Higbee, 17, of 1811 Novato Boulevard, Novato.

Elder Paul Alderson of the Seventh-day Adventist Church of Novato said that, "although ours is a very small church, about six or seven young men have participated in this training in the past two or three years."

The program was begun during World War II, Elder Alderson said, "and all our young fellows that have taken it have been so grateful for it. It helps them to be better soldiers."

Seventh-day Adventists oppose killing, said camp commandant Harry Garlick of Glendale at the opening of the weeklong encampment Wednesday. "But," Garlick said, "they do believe in answering the call of their country to military service."

"Because of this paradoxical stand our church trains its young men, even before they are drafted, in military procedures and military medical aid techniques so they may serve as medics in the Armed Forces," said Garlick.

"More than 300 young Adventists are currently serving in Vietnam, many of them as frontline combat medics. A number of these men have died while serving their country there."

The camp, he said, is run on a strictly military basis with a cadre of some 20 officers to oversee the training of the "Medical Cadets" as the trainees are called. Military drill, Army terminology, military medical aid technique, and general military procedures are taught.

In addition to their drill, traditional KP, and other daily exercises, the trainees stand guard duty, complete nighttime exercises, and other scheduled duties. "We are making the training as rugged as possible," explained Garlick, who holds the rank of major in the church's Medical Cadet Corps, training unit for the special approach.

Camp commander Garlick draws on his own experience as a combat paratrooper in World War II to provide a rugged quality to the training. Garlick's second-in-command is Lawrence Wolfe of Newbury Park, Ventura County, a World War II Air Force veteran who, while a prisoner of the Germans in eastern Germany, helped dig the famous "Tom," "Dick," and "Harry" tunnels under Sagan prison to aid in the escape of 76 Allied airmen.

Next Wednesday, closing day of the camp, the trainees will participate in a massed review, and be tested on concepts and techniques studied in the eight-day concentration training course.

Church Attendance Climbs In America

NEW YORK (UPI) —More Americans are going to church now than 14 years ago, according to a survey sponsored by The Catholic Digest and conducted by Dr. George Gallup's Public Opinion Survey.

The survey showed that today 13 per cent of Catholics, 33 per cent of Protestants and 39 per cent of Jews never go to church. A similar poll made in 1952 showed non-attendance at church then was 18 per cent for Catholics, 32 per cent for Protestants and 56 per cent for Jews.

THE NEW LOOK FOR MODERN NUNS

This new shorter-skirted habit was adopted this week by the Roman Catholic Sisters of Mercy with the approval of James Francis Cardinal McIntyre of Los Angeles. The Sisters of Charity of Providence also will modernize. Skirts won't go any higher than 10 inches from the floor, but skirt fullness is modified by pleating. Sisters may wear pumps and sheerer hose under the Vatican Council's recent rulings. Veils are substituted for the starched-stiff coif and wimple.

Catholic Publications Speak Out For Suspended Priest

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

NEW YORK (AP) — Influential Roman Catholic voices today were offering support to the plea of the suspended California priest, the Rev. William DuBay, for an open ecclesiastical trial of his case.

Without one, the Vatican recently upheld his suspension. Father DuBay, protesting the lack of a hearing at which he could defend himself, has appealed to Pope Paul VI.

The widely respected Jesuit weekly, America, saying the situation points up deficiencies in the church's legal procedures, declared:

"In the name of basic human dignity and the procedural guarantees indispensable for that dignity's recognition, Father DuBay should be given an impartial, public and procedurally impeccable trial."

Some other American Catholic publication have voiced sim-

The independently edited newspaper, the National Catholic Reporter, said last week that Father DuBay "is performing a service for the church" in insisting that the church heed the rights of due process.

"Today it is an almost universal conviction of mankind that judicial proceedings held in secret and in the absence of the accused are not likely to provide "efficacious' protection of personal rights."

The issue has broad implications for the church, in the light of the Second Vatican Council's stress on the place of individual conscience, ideas and expression in contributing to the church's life.

America, in its strongly worded editorial, disclaimed any sympathy for Father DuBay's doctrinal or practical viewpoints, but declared that he should have due process of law for his "sake — and even more, for the church's sake."

Father DuBay, 31, first got into trouble in 1964 when he publicly accused his superior James Francis Cardinal McIntyre, of Los Angeles, of "gross malfeasance" and urged Pope Paul to remove him.

The priest claimed Cardinal McIntyre had failed to provide moral leadership against racial discrimination, and had suppressed priests who sought to do so.

Cardinal McIntyre transferred him several times, eventually to Santa Monica, Calif., and last February suspended him from exercising his priesthood, after he urged a labor union for priests, and published a book, "The Human Church," urging wide reforms, such as election of bishops.

He appealed his suspension, asking for "an ecclesiastical court before which I may make a defense and receive the protections of due process."

On July 30, he was notified by the apostolic delegate to the United States, Archbishop Egidio Vagnozzi, of Washington, D.C., that the Vatican's Congregation for the Doctrine of Faith had upheld his suspension as "well founded and just."

Father DuBay, in appealing to Pope Paul, commented: "Not only have I been tried in absentia by anonymous judges and prevented from appearing in person with counsel and witnesses, but also I have been denied the right of confronting my accusers."

In its editorial, America said that "by modern standards, canon law is sadly deficient in procedural safeguards" for clergy, not only because of their reluctance to clash with bishops, but because the law is weighted in favor of bishops.

Confirmation At Prison

Archbishop Joseph T. McGucken of San Francisco will administer the Secrament of Confirmation at 1:30 p.m. tomorrow to 100 San Quentin inmates. He will be assisted by the Revs. Thomas F. Ahern and J. W. Mullen, institutional chaplains.

'Academic Pressure'

"Learning To Cope With Academic Pressure" will be the topic of tomorrow's program at 7:30 a.m. on station KGO in the Christian Science radio series, "The Bible Speaks To You."

"Christ Jesus" is the subject of tomorrow's Bible lesson to be read in all Christian Science churches.

Novato Methodist Services Changed

Only one service at 9:30 a.m. will be held instead of the regular two services tomorrow at the Novato Community Methodist Church.

There will not be any Sunday school that day and children are asked by Rev. Leo. W. Hamilton to attend the church service with their parents or teachers.

All children and adults will re-register for the fall term of Sunday school. Registration will be held before and after the service.

New members will be received at the service and there will be a coffee fellowship after the service.

An ecumenical conversation period will be held at 7:45 p.m. at the Methodist Church. Members of the Presbyterian and United churches have been invited. Rev. Hamilton will act as convener.

Rev. Janssen To Speak

The Rev. Ihno Janssen Jr. of West Portal Luthern Church of San Francisco will speak on "The Flight of Faith" tomorrow at Resurrection Lutheran Church, Terra Linda. Rev. and Mrs. N. J. Bangert are vacationing in Hawaii.

Russian Baptists Sentenced For Religious Practices

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union has sentenced six members of a Baptist sect to prison terms of unspecified length on charges of "antisocial activities" and influencing childrens' minds with books containing "nonsensical notions on reality."

The newspaper Teacher's Gazette said Tuesday that the trial took place in Rostov-on-Don but did not say when.

According to the paper, the sect organized a street demonstration last May 2 and disrupted public order not only by the demonstration but by baptizing 40 young persons in the Don River. One of those baptized was a girl member of the Young Communists' League.

The sect leaders set up an illegal Sunday School "in which illiterate and fanatical teachers taught 'God's word' to children 8 to 11 years old, and persistently and systematically accustomed them to a religious outlook," the Gazette said.

The May 2 baptism came on a Monday immediately after May Day which happened to fall on a Sunday this year. The indictment charged the sect with holding meetings that conflicted with official Soviet holidays — all of which come on Sundays except for May Day and the Nov. 7 anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution.

One defendant was described as engineer P. D. Belenky who gave Baptist lectures while on business trips. Three others were listed as Zhovmiruk, Bolgovya and Yerisov. Two were unidentified.

The paper did not say whether there was any connection between this Baptist sect and another one at Mtsensk, near Orel, denounced last May 22.

The Rev. Alexander Karev, general secretary of the Baptist Union in the Soviet Union, said the one based in Mtsensk was small and fanatical and regular Baptists disapproved of it.

The Russian, with more than 500,000 members, is the second largest Baptist community in the world after the United States.

Leach Wins State Junior Golf Title

MERCED (AP)—Novato's Ray Leach has grabbed another junior golfing crown to add to his growing collection.

The 16-year-old lad fired a three-under-par 69 yesterday to capture the California Junior Boys championship at Merced Golf and Country Club with a score of 293.

Leach has already won the Northern California Junior championship and was the runner-up in the National Junior championship this summer.

Leach picked up seven strokes from a faltering Lon Hinkle, of Santee, who led the field at the beginning of the final day's competition. Hinkle stumbled to a 45 on the second nine and ended up in fifth place with a final round of 79 and an overall 296.

Ron Hoyt of Merced won a three-man sudden death playoff to capture second place. Hoyt, Stephen Bohn of Roseville and Don Hawken of San Rafael finished the tournament with scores of 295. Hawken bogeyed the second hole of the playoff to fall to fourth place, and Bohn fell to third place with a bogey on the third hole. Hoyt parred all three.

Leach, a junior at Novato High School who came within three strokes of becoming the youngest player ever to qualify for the National Open earlier this summer, got off to a slow start in his bid for the state title. His first three rounds were 75, 74 and 75, but yesterday's torrid finish —ala Arnold Palmer — gave him the coveted crown.

Hawken's first three rounds were 74, 73 and 74 before yesterday's final 74.

MARIN GRIDDERS OPEN PRACTICES ON MONDAY

Footballs will start filling the air Monday when teams in the Marin County Athletic League report to opening practices of the 1966 season.

Defending champion Novato, runner-up Drake, Redwood, San Rafael, Terra Linda, Tamalpais and Marin Catholic all are scheduled for initial practices Monday pointing toward their opening non-league games on the Sept. 16-17 weekend. Opening league games are set for the Sept. 30, Oct. 1 weekend.

ALONG MARIN'S SPORTS TRAIL

By JIM GILMARTIN
I-J Sports Editor

The Passing Of A Good Sport; How The Dipsea Really Began

SO LONG, SELMA: I've had a ball poking fun at women golfers over the years. To me their tournaments are destruction derbies, damsels in distress, a broad subject with handicaps handicapping their hilarious handicap systems.

Some of the little sunflowers have resented my cracks at their great outdoor sport, but a majority of the cupcakes seem to go along with the gag. Some, even, have laughed along with me when reporting those stratospheric scores.

Mrs. Herbert H. Samuels visited this office occasionally in her role of captain and guiding light for the Las Gallinas Women's Golf Club and, more recently, for the Oakview Ladies Rover Golf Club, Terra Linda. Mrs. Samuels loved golf and did everything she could to promote women's participation in the sport that, I imagine, brightened her lonely widow's existence.

SHE RESPECTFULLY requested coverage of her club's activities in the I-J and dutifully reported scores, trying her darnedest to keep a straight face when discussing the Three Little Pigs and Tin Whistle and Odd or Even, tournaments the ladies play. But a twinkle of the eye betrayed her feigned seriousness. We had a ball, and more than once did she drop me a note commenting on golf items that appeared here.

Selma Samuels died suddenly Tuesday at the age of 61. She'd bawl me out for revealing her age and probably give me hell for missing the results of the last Three Little Pigs Tournament. But she'd do it with that twinkle. And I'll miss it, by golly, I'll miss it.

THE DIPSEA: Tomorrow's 56th running of Marin's famed 6.8-mile Dipsea Race brings to mind the origination of the gruelling run. Historians tell us that some members of the Olympic Club, loaded to the gills with Wheaties and no way to vent their energy, happened to hike over Mt. Tamalpais one day and then decided to run back, calling themselves the Siaplamat Indians, which is Tamalpais Snaidni spelled backwards. Clever?

But I think what really happened is that these two old drunks were sitting around the Old Mill in Mill Valley one afternoon back around the turn of the century, and Jed said to Zeke, "Come on, Zeke, I'll race you to the beach, and we'll take a dip in the sea."

Hence, the Dipsea Race was born.

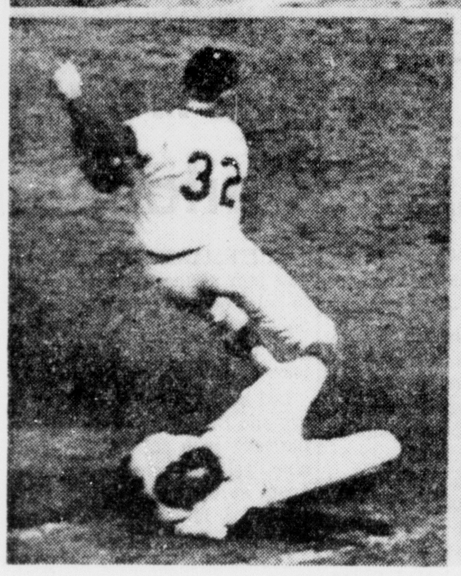
Tomorrow an army of 200-plus men and boys will follow in Jed's and Zeke's footsteps, starting at 10 a.m. in Mill Valley and ending at Stinson Beach. Don't ask me why. I'm with you, Bunkie. I'll drive.

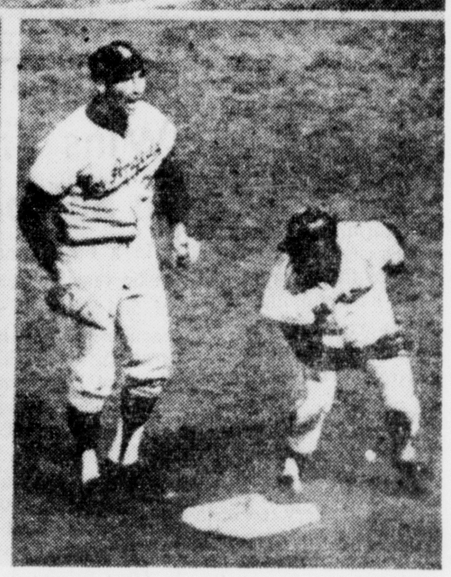
ALSO TOMORROW, I'm betting on the Sohner softball team to beat the Mill Valley Merchants in their oddball softball vs. baseball game at Mill Valley. Because, how can those baseballers hit the softball pitching of Sohner's Morey Swarm when the best softball teams in the Bay Area can't do so? (Morey, by the way, has a 36-7 won-lost record with an incredible 0.86 earned run average!)

LAST YEAR the Ross Valley Kiwanis Club spent 73 per cent of the gross gate receipts for expenses in staging the first North-South Marin football game. The sanctioning National Collegiate Athletic Assn. scolded the Kiwanians, saying a minimum of 40 per cent must go to charitable work, or no sanction (yer welcome).

This year the Kiwanians cut way down on the expenses and are now getting chided from the other side for being so chintzy in buying $3 jerseys, serving coffee and cake at the post-game "banquet," making players provide their own lunches during practice and a few other penny-pinching things.

Game chairman Charles Monte shrugs, "You can't please everyone."





THIS ( ) CLOSE—Giant Tito Fuentes beat out an infield hit in the sixth inning last night at Candlestick Park, prompting Dodger pitcher Sandy Koufax, 32, to argue with umpire Al Barlick (not shown) for giving Fuentes the nod. It didn't help the Giants, who knuckled under to Koufax in a 4-0 shutout. It was the southpaw's 21st victory of the season. (AP Wirephoto)

Sandy Too Much! Giants Blanked

By JOE SARGIS

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Sandy Koufax took a long drag on a cigarette, reflected seriously on his four-hit 4-0 victory over the San Francisco Giants and said, "Believe me, it wasn't easy, none of them ever are."

While the peerless Los Angeles lefthander struck out seven batters—low for him—he never once gave the Giants a chance to break through last night as the Dodgers rolled over the Giants for the seventh time this season in 13 meetings.

The victory was the Dodgers' sixth straight and it put them just a game behind the second-place Giants and 1½ behind the leading Pittsburgh Pirates in the National League race.

Koufax, in winning his 21st game of 1966 compared to seven losses, operated practically throughout the whole game without his curve ball.

"My elbow still hurts when I try throwing the curve," he said, "and at this stage of the season I have to keep on taking my turn."

His remark was in reference to a game a couple of weeks ago when his elbow tightened up and he had to leave in the sixth inning.

"I'm all right now," Koufax said, crossing his fingers. "Even though we got those big four runs in the eighth inning, I didn't feel as if I had it made. I can remember giving up that many runs before in less than two innings."

Maybe Sandy can, but hardly anyone else remembers.

Anyway, Koufax's latest victory made him the majors' first 21-game winner of the season. A year ago when Koufax won a career high of 28 games, he scored his 21st victory on Aug. 14, but he didn't get No. 22 until Sept. 9.

Sandy said he saw no relationship between the two seasons.

"We're getting more runs this year," said Koufax, "and besides, you can't try to compare the two seasons. This year, I feel there isn't a team in our league that is easy. In fact, I don't feel safe until I have a 12-run lead with one inning to go."

Koufax was locked in a scoreless duel with big Bob Bolin of the Giants for seven innings before the Dodgers finally broke through for four runs and the game.

Bolin struck out the first five batters he faced and had eight strikeouts in all for the 7 1-3 innings he worked. The Dodgers got their first hit off him in the sixth, Maury Wills lining a single to left leading off the frame. The Dodgers loaded the bases on Bolin with one out but the Giant righthander got out of the frame by inducing Jim Lefebvre to pop out and getting John Roseboro on a fly to center.

However, the roof fell in on Bolin in the eighth.

Wes Parker started the rally by walking for the second time. (He was passed four times in all). He moved to second on a sacrifice by Willie Davis and scored the game's first run on a single by Ron Fairly. When Bolin followed with a walk to Lefebvre, he was taken out in favor of Bill Henry.

Roseboro greeted Henry with a run-scoring single and Lindy McDaniel took over the San Francisco pitching. Lou Johnson promptly doubled to score the inning's third run and, after Jim Gilliam was walked intentionally, Koufax batted in the fourth run with a sacrifice fly.

The Dodgers got only six hits in all but Giant pitching contributed eight walks and a ninth Los Angeles batter reached base on an error.

Koufax's seven strikeouts gave him 2,340 for his career to push him past Early Wynn for eighth place on the all-time strikeout list.

A crowd of 42,747 saw the first game of the three game weekend set. It was the biggest crowd of the season at Candlestick Park, but more of the same is expected for the next two games.

Today, Don Drysdale tried to keep the Dodgers' streak alive while pitching against Juan Marichal. Drysdale took a 9-13 record into the game against Marichal's 18-5. Juan won his last start after an absence because of a sore ankle. On Sunday either Claude Osteen (13-10) or rookie Don Sutton (10-11) will pitch for Los Angeles against Gaylord Perry (20-3).

PRO FOOTBALL DOUBLEHEADER

Colts Storm To Victory; Vikings Shade Redskins

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The Baltimore Colts stormed from behind in the second half behind quarterback Gary Cuozzo last night to beat the Cleveland Browns 24-17 in the second half of a National Football League doubleheader before 83,418 fans.

After the game, Cleveland Coach Blanton Collier was searching for answers. He finally said simply, "We let down."

The first game went to the Minnesota Vikings, 30-27 over the Washington Redskins, thanks to the foot of field goal expert Fred Cox.

He booted three in the fourth quarter, the last a 28-yarder with six seconds left.

There were some bright spots in the Browns' defeat, all in the first quarter when they jumped to a 14-0 lead.

"We didn't play as well the second half," said Collier. "If I knew why we didn't, I would have done something. They had a pretty good rush on us in the second half. They had us in the hole."

Baltimore kept the pressure on quarterback Jim Ninowski in the second half after Frank Ryan threw a 39-yard strike to Gary Collins and Leroy Kelly dashed 46 yards for another touchdown, zig-zagging and leaping down the right side.

The Cleveland offense seemed to bog down in the second quarter after Bob Boyd intercepted a Ryan pass on the Colts' 14. Baltimore Quarterback John Unitas bounced back in six plays with a 13-yard pass to Tom Matte for a touchdown. Lou Michaels added a 43-yard field goal that cut Cleveland's halftime lead to 14-10.

Enter Cuozzo. The Colts' second string flinger picked at the Browns secondary for two touchdowns—a 44-yard heave to Willie Richardson and one for 24 that Matte grabbed with a leap at the three-yard line. He turned and stumbled into the end zone.

Unitas and Cuozzo combined for 17 of 33 completions for 243 yards while the Ryan-Ninowski combination was held to 149 yards.

The Vikings also alternated passers, using Fran Tarkenton the first half and Ron VanderKelen in the second.

Sonny Jurgensen went the distance for Washington and threw three touchdowns, including a 43-yarder to Bobby Mitchell that put the Skins ahead, 24-21 early in the third quarter. The others were 21 yards to Preston Carpenter and a one-yard flip to Jerry Smith.

But Cox settled the issue. His nine-yard and 41-yard field goals tied it twice in the final period and the last came after VanderKelen passes moved the Vikings in close.

Tarkenton connected twice, a 32-yard pitch to Paul Flatley and another for 37 yards to Hal Bedsole. Phil King punched over from the one-yard line after an interference penalty.

Jurgenson, the most energetic quarterback of the evening, completed 32 of 52 passes for 303 yards. Tarkenton and VanderKelen combined for 18 of 32 for 354 yards.

The Minnesota victory gives the Vikings 15 exhibition victories without a defeat. The Colts are 4-0, the Redskins 0-3 and Cleveland 2-2.

Waterfowl Hunting Regulations Listed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Duck hunters throughout most of California can hunt waterfowl from Oct. 22 through Jan. 4, the State Fish and Game Commission decreed yesterday.

The bag and possession limit is seven ducks for hunters in all but unspecified special areas.

In the Tule Lake area, the commission set Oct. 8 through Jan. 5 for duck hunters, with a daily bag limit of five ducks and possession of 10. For the Colorado River area, the dates will be Oct. 11 through Jan. 8, with a daily limit of five and possession of 10.

This year there will be no special additional restrictions on pintails, mallards, canvasbacks or redheads, the commission said.

The commission also set dates for the general goose season, Oct. 22-Jan. 8, with bag and possession limits of six, only three of which may be of the dark species. Another limitation confines geese hunters to only one Ross's goose.

Also set was a special additional goose season from Jan. 9-22, with bag and possession limits of three. The coot and gallinule season, Oct. 22-Jan. 4, has a bag and possession limit of 25 in the aggregate, while the jacksnipe season will be Nov. 19-Jan. 7.

Fund Drive To Aid Bulldog Athletes

The San Rafael High School Student Body Assn. has announced plans for a fall fund drive to help sponsor a foster child, boost the school's athletic program and help other general service projects for the area.

The students will be selling season passes for the five San Rafael High School home football games, and three preseason basketball games. The tickets are also being sold at Stan's Sport Shop and Taveggia-Brusati Sporting Goods in San Rafael.

YOU SAID A MOUTHFUL!

Ron McCamish, Sohner Tree Service softball team infielder, is used to playing close to the batter, but this is what could happen if he gets too close against a baseball team. Swinging the bat is Keith Fraser, while Bill Brody is doing the catching. It was all in fun, but it would have been a heck-of-a catch.

More Than 200 Tackle Mighty Dipsea Sunday

Independent-Journal Sports

22 Sat., Aug. 27, 1966

Tomorrow is the day runners of all ages—and we mean all ages—assault Mount Tamalpais en masse. It's the 56th running of the famed Dipsea Race.

It begins at 10 a.m. from Lytton Square in the center of Mill Valley, and after a trip skirting Muir Woods and over Tamalpais, it winds up on Main Street in Stinson Beach.

Oldest entrant is Clifford Beavers of San Mateo, a sprite 61 years young. Youngest of the more than 200 entrants are 10-year-old Steve Ertman of Santa Clara and 12-year-old Barnaby Angell of Mill Valley.

Roy Vogel has come all the way from Orlando Air Force Base, Fla. to compete, and Peter Gamache all the way from Lewiston, Maine.

There're twins Paul and Albert Woicicki of Fairfield and Lee and Lorrie Weber of San Francisco. There're several father-son combinations, including Robert Biancalana and son Mike of Mill Valley.

John Satti of Marin Athletic Club and San Francisco, the winner last year, will be back to defend his title. He was 52 when he won the 1965 Dipsea. Eight of the first 10 finishers from last year are entered again, as is Joe Barni, the fastest high schooler from last year's race.

Two Dipsea veterans, Darryl Beardall of Santa Rosa, and Wes Hildreth of Mill Valley, will be back.

The Marin A.C., perennial team champ in the Dipsea, will againt be heavily favored. But for the first time in many years, the big Olympic Club of San Francisco is going all out for the team honors. The Winged-O club is sending a 24-man delegation to this year's run.

It was the Olympic Club that started the race back in 1905. It all started with a challenge race from Mill Valley to Stinson Beach, which concluded with a dip in the sea, from whence the name derived.

The record over the 6.8-mile course has been standing since 1937, when the Olympic Club's Norman Bright sped over the up and downhill trail to the sea in 47 minutes and 22 seconds.

It's a handicap race, with the older runners getting the biggest breaks. Athletes 16 and under will have four-minute handicaps. Those 17 to 34 will run scratch, ages 35 through 39 will get five minutes, 40 through 44 is worth eight minutes, and those 45 or older get 11 minutes.

The race is under the supervision of the Amateur Athletic Union. The AAU officials working will be Robert DeCelle, meet director; Snort Winstead, head times; Don Brillhart, assistant times, and Frank Geis, AAU registration chairman. Starter will be Dan Terzich, Mill Valley chief of police.

There will be trophies galore. The winning trophy has been donated by the Mill Valley Chamber of Commerce and the Stinson Beach Progressive Club. Fastest time trophy donated by Clarice McMahon; fastest high school runner trophy by Manuel and Tony Brazil; fastest time for runners 40 or older by Roger Boas.

The team trophy for the winning AAU club has been donated by the Mill Valley Jaycees, and the trophies for the first through 10th place finishers by the City of Mill Valley.

Everybody who runs, and finishes, will get survivor medals.

TO ANSWER A QUESTION . . .

Softball Versus Baseball

Can a good baseball team beat a good softball team if the balls are switched?

That question should be answered tomorrow afternoon at when the Mill Valley Merchants semi-pro baseballers take on Sohner Tree Service softballers Optimist Field in Mill Valley at 1:30.

It will be a nine-inning game, with Mill Valley pitchers hurling overhand baseballs and Sohner hurlers firing underhand softballs.

Frank Quinn of San Anselmo, who has been around Marin County sports just about longer than anybody, picks the Sohner team. "Sohner will win," says Quinn, "because Mill Valley will have more trouble adjusting to the softball pitching."

Here's how some of the players feel:

Morey Swarm, Gary's brother: "We'll win because those hardball hitters won't hit my brother."

Fred Rodoni, Merchant's outfielder: "We'll win by two T.D.'s."

Ed Schulze, Sohner 225-pound first baseman: "Very few of the hardball hitters will even touch the ball. We should get at least two or three runs. Our pitchers will shut them out."

Bill Brody, Mill Valley third baseman: "It might be close for a few innings, but I think we'll eventually win by a big score."

Merchants manager Bob Selna thinks it will be a tight battle all the way. "I really think we'll win," says Selna. "It should be a low scoring game."

Keith Fraser will do the pitching for the Merchants, and will be playing against his own teammates. He doubles as a centerfielder for the Sohner softballers. Fraser is scheduled to pitch the first five innings for the Merchants. "After the fifth inning," says Fraser, "I will renegotiate my contract."

Since Fraser has played more than 70 games with Sohner this year and only 15 with the Merchants, manager Selna is wondering if Keith will serve up "fat" ones to his Sohner teammates.

Jess Munyon, Sohner catcher, will be playing against his old teammates. He caught for the Merchants in 1963 and '64. Fraser and Munyon are the only softballers who have played any baseball recently. On the Mill Valley team, no players have ever faced any softball pitching higher than church league caliber.

Chuck Tyson, who sometimes pitches for Sohners' will be one of the umpires, raising more doubts from Selna.

Both teams have winning streaks going into the game. Sohner treemen have won 18 straight softball tilts and the Merchants have won four straight semi-pro games.

There is no charge for the game, but a "hat" will be passed around the spectators for contributions to buy equipment for both teams.

Sohner Manager Ken Cuneo announced the following lineup and batting averages: Ed Schulze, 1b, (.350); Ron McCamish, 2b, (.297); Milt Hain, 3b, (.306); Ron Jerome, ss, (.256); Eary Byer, lf, (.278); Dan George, cf, (.222); Ken Cuneo, rf, (.253); Art Donati, (.241) or Jess Munyon (.298), c; Morey Swarm (36-7), p.

Mill Valley's lineup and batting averages will include Bob Selna, 1b, (.000, it's his first game); Steve Woodward, 2b (.358); Ricky Miller, ss, (.380); Bill Brody, 3b (.361); Ray Valconese, c (.305); Bill DiGrazia, rf (.349); Fred Rodoni, cf (.331); John Odetto, lf (.309).

49ers Seek First Victory Against Falcons Tonight

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — San Francisco's 49ers, figured as one of the top National Football League clubs in pre-season ratings, battle for their first victory tonight facing the Atlanta Falcons and rookie quarterback Randy Johnson.

Coach Jack Christiansen's Californians failed to show an adequate defense in losing to Dallas, Cleveland and Pittsburgh in exhibition outings.

This time they go against a club which has scored only three touchdowns in four games, two by defensive cornerback Ron Smith.

Seeking to put some snap in the offense, Coach Norb Hecker of Atlanta nominated Johnson, a small college passing whiz for Texas A&I, to open at quarterback instead of Dennis Claridge.

Johnson saw only limited action during the losses to Philadelphia, St. Louis, New york and Cleveland. The rookie hit on 12 of 40 passes for 109 yards.

Atlanta and San Francisco have met just one common foe during this pre-season campaign. Cleveland beat the 49ers 28-17 and last week scored 28 points in the final period while walloping the Falcons 42-3.

George Mira gets his second starting call at quarterback for San Francisco, having been at the helm during the loss to Dallas. In that one, the former Miami star, completed 15 of 35 passes for 161 yards and a touchdown.

Christiansen continues to experiment. Not only will Mira be at quarterback instead of the No. 1 signal caller, John Brodie, but Bob Harrison gets a starting linebacker assignment, Jim Wilson opens at guard, Jim Norton at a defensive end and rookie Alvin Randolph in the defensive secondary.

Veteran linebacker Matt Hazeltine, hampered by a knee injury, could see his first service of the season.

As the 49ers hope also to mount a consistent offense for the first time this season, Bernie Casey opens at flanker, Dave Parks at split end, Ken Willard at fullback and John David Crow at halfback.

Willard, from the University of North Carolina, finished fourth among NFL rushers during his rookie year of 1965. In the three games this season, he has gained 126 yards on 30 carries for a 4.2 average, and has scored two touchdowns.

Raiders In National TV Test Sunday

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Oakland Raiders depart today for a Sunday date with Denver where they will end their pre-season exhibition slate before a nationwide television audience. (NBC, 1:30 p.m., Color).

Quarterback Cotton Davidson, who has been recovering from bruised ribs, is expected to see some action but Tom Flores will probably start.

Flores has started slowly with only a 42 per cent completion average (33 for 78) and 374 yards gained in three pre-season contests. Rookie Charlie Green showed ability to move the team last week and also is available.

Oakland yesterday cut rookie linebackers Ray Schmautz and Cliff Kinney and released tackle Marv Marinovich, who had left camp anyway. That cut the roster to 45 and five more must go when Oakland opens the AFL season in Miami next Friday night.

Litchfield Team Plays Tomorrow

Lefthander Harvey Kaufmann will pitch against the East Bay team.

The Bermuda Palms nine has only one other game left, following tomorrow's tilt, on its 40-game schedule. After 38 contests, the San Rafael boys have won 31 while losing only 7. Four of those 7 losses have been by only one run, while 11 of the 31 triumphs have been shutouts hurled by the Litchfield mound corps. That sparking 31-7 record includes a 14-game winning streak.

Returning to the fold tomorrow for Litchfield's are left fielder Doug Wilson, out with an injured back the past three weeks, and first baseman Barry Krohn, out with a broken finger. Willson had hit a .395 clip before the injury and Krohn was at .375.

Terra Linda Wins In Softball, 4-3

Terra Linda Athletic Club defeated Marin Hill Kennels, 4-3, yesterday in the Men's 12-inch Softball League, sponsored by the San Rafael Recreation Department, at Albert Field.

World Motorcycle Record Set At Bonneville Flats

BOONEVILLE SALT FLATS, Utah — A new world land speed record of 245.667 mph for motorcycles was set here Thursday, shattering the former mark by more than 15 mph.

The records was achieved by the Gyronaut X1, a torpedo-shaped cycle designed by Alex Tremulis of Northridge Calif., a one time Detroit automobile stylist. The driver was Robin Leppan of Mt. Clemens, Mich.

The Gyronaut made five runs in excess of the old record of 230.27 mph set Aug. 24, 1962 by Bill Johnson on a nitro-powered streamliner. A single set of Goodyear land speed record tires was used for all five runs and no wear was encountered, Tremulis reported.

The record of 245.667 mph, timed and certified by the American Motorcycle Assn., represented the two-way average of runs of 243.572 and 247.763 mph through the measured mile.

The Gyronaut was powered by two 650 cc Triumph motorcycle engines operating on alcohol fuel and producing 120 horsepower.

Marin Team Wins Title In Softball

In a fitting finale to a fantastic year, Sohner Tree Service of San Anselmo concluded its ragular season last night by grabbing a 7-2 victory over Sebastopol Merchants to win the double elimination Windsor Invitational Softball Tournament in Healdsburg.

As was the case in the recent San Anselmo Tournament, the Treemen won all four of their tourney games.

After Sohner defeated Sebastopol last Sunday, the Merchants had won four straight in the loser's bracket to gain the finals. Sebastopol had to beat Stevenson's Equipment, 3-1, and Sonoma Motors, 1-0, Thursday night to gain the right to play Sohner last night.

By notching the victory, Sohner ended the season with an 18-game winning streak and a phenomenal season record of 61 wins and 14 setbacks.

Among the many heroes last night, pitcher Morey Swarm once again stood out.

The Sohner righthander drove in three runs with a pair of singles and limited the Merchants to six scattered hits.

Swarm thus pitched all four tournament victories, yielding only three earned runs to win the most valuable pitcher honors. Sohner first sacker Ed Schulze won most valuable player award.

Terrific Traffic Jam In Philadelphia Golf Open

WHITEMARSH, Pa. (AP) — The jam at the top today after 36 holes of the $110,000 Philadelphia Golf Classic was the biggest of the year on the PGA tour.

Led by Dave Marr, Don January and Bill Martindale, tied for the lead with 138s, there were nine golfers only one stroke apart as the 75, who made the cutoff of 147, teed off in the third round.

Crowding them with 139 were Tommy Weiskopf, Roberto Di-Vicinzo, Gene Littler, Dudley Wysong, Ed Charles and George Knudson. It was only four strokes back to the perennial chargers, Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer and Billy Casper.

"There's going to be some juggling around on that course today," said the 27-year-old Martindale.

Marr, who walked the course yesterday mumbling to himself, January, who pleaded exhaustion after a second straight three-under-par 69, and Martindale blazed into the lead as young Weiskopf faltered.

The 32-year-old Marr fired a six-under-par 66 to go with his first round 72. Martindale toured the 6,708-yard Whitemarsh Valley Country Club course in 68. He had a first round 70 on the par 72 layout.

Said Marr:

"I counted, 'One take it back, two come into the ball, three follow through.' "

He explained he talked to himself to regain his rhythm.

The 36-year-old January plopped down in the press tent, spread his hands across a table and said listlessly: "I'm just plumb worn out. I've played in eight straight tournaments and I'm pooped. This is the last one this year except for some special television matches."

The big guns of the tour, Nicklaus, Palmer and Casper, shot 70, 71, 70, respectively, and were among a dozen tied at 142. PGA champion Al Geiberger was six strokes off among the 144s.

Tam Cagers Lose In Summer Loop Playoff

New Pisa (Poly) came from behind in the third quarter to defeat Tamalpais 72-64 in the playoff game for the championship of the Drake Summer Basketball High School League at the Drake gymnasium last night.

Tam had a 33-27 lead at half time and increased it to a 10-point lead midway in the third period. Poly started to control the boards and tied the score at 48-48 with two minutes to go in the third quarter. Poly then ran off eight straight points and held off the Indians to collect the individual championship trophies. The game was a thriller.

Charles Yoachim led the winners with 17 points and Larry Hicks led in rebounds and also had 14 points for Poly. The Indians' Steve Woodward led all scorers with 21 points.

Is Technology Breeding An Aristocratic Nation?

Is our democracy getting more aristocratic as it grows older?

There are signs that it is.

A generation ago a person who called himself by a title other than Mr. was an oddity. It was presumed he had some old world ties because good Americans—sons of the revolution—rejected such foolishness. They were too mature and sophisticated to attach any significance to titles.

BUT WHERE ARE we now?

In today's public education system you had better call yourself "doctor" and have a Ph.D. behind your name or you won't get far.

If you are a medical doctor, it is fast becoming essential to have some initials behind your name in addition to the simple M.D. You need F.A.C.S. or some such if you are to receive proper recognition.

Architects like to use A.I.A. after their names. Some accountants are C.P.A.s. Life insurance salesmen aspire to use C.L.U. Veterinarians are D.V.M.s.

There are scores of other such affectations to denote status, professional and otherwise.

Not so many years ago all this was regarded as foolishness.

IN THE BUSINESS world, title has come to mean much—when measuring status. Everybody is a manager of something, except in banks which are overrun with vice presidents. Salesmen are account executives. Janitors have disappeared; now we have maintenance engineers. Garbage collectors are giving way to sanitary engineers.

During the long period of political unrest in Mexico, in the first decades of this century, it was a favorite indoor sports to say of the Mexican army that it consisted of all generals and no privates.

And there was a time in business when management guarded against having too many chiefs and not enough Indians.

BUT THOSE DAYS SEEM to be past. The laugh must be on us now.

Everybody in business is an executive. Educators are fast becoming all "doctors." Newspaper editors are becoming executive editors or editors-in-chief, and all their news staffs are becoming editors of one sort or another. Journalism schools are being eclipsed by schools of communication research.

When printing was first introduced into the curriculum at California Polytechnic College (at San Luis Obispo) the department was known as the "school for country printers." Now its graduates are awarded degrees in printing engineering and it would be considered vulgar to mention the honorable old school for country printers anymore.

IT IS TRUE THAT the advance of science and technology is remaking us into a civilization of specialists and technicians.

But our nation's revolutionary fathers must be restless in their graves as they see our clamorous competition for status-by-title.

To those of us old enough to have been brought up in an America where we learned "all men are created equal" and all are equal before the law, it is painful to observe the present preoccupation with title status.

Woodpeckers' Ancient Cavity

Dr. Robert T. Orr, noted curator of the California Academy of Sciences, in his new book, "The Animal Kingdom," tells of receiving at the museum "a section of redwood log that had a cavity crammed full of acorns deep in the heart of the wood."

By counting the number of growth rings—1080—between the pocket and the bark, he and his staff dated the excavation of the cavity at sometime before the Norman Conquest. They deduced that a woodpecker had started excavating a nest cavity and had abandoned it when only half finished.

As the tree continued to grow, it produced new wood until its only opening was a small hole which probably resembled one of the holes that woodpeckers drill for acorn storage. This was used by the woodpeckers until the hole was filled and in time the opening closed over.

Acorn-storing woodpeckers still live in the redwoods of Northern California and Marin County. And Jays store acorns, too.

Bouquets And Brickbats

BRICKBATS to the rising cost of automobile insurance rates.

A BOUQUET to Mr. and Mrs. Lytton H. Schwerin of San Anselmo on their golden wedding anniversary. They have lived in their present home for almost their entire married life.

BOUQUETS to all airlines for the dispatch with which they brought service back to normal after the 43-day strike.

BOUQUETS to all whose Easter Seal contributions last spring made it possible for 10 handicapped Marin youngsters to enjoy an outing now at the Crippled Children's Society camp in Santa Clara County.

BRICKBATS to young girls on San Marino Drive in San Rafael who requested taxicabs to be sent to wrong addresses.

A BOUQUET to those responsible for the success of Inverness Fair.

A BOUQUET to the Novato Teen Club for donating $200 to the city for its parks acquisition fund.

BRICKBATS to the inconsiderate picnickers who messed up the Stafford Lake area and thus prompted the North Marin Water District to deny use of the area for all citizens.

BRICKBATS to the firebugs whose deliberate and/or careless acts are endangering lives and property.

A BOUQUET to Sgt. Clyde W. Jackson III of Hamilton Air Force Base for gallantry in going to the rescue of a downed fighter plane off North Viet Nam. He received the Silver Star for his role in the mission.

THREE MINUTES A DAY

By JAMES KELLER

MANY TEEN-AGERS ARE UNDERFED

Teen-age boys and girls who either skip breakfast or eat an inadequate one are creating an increasing problem. They are becoming nutritional dropouts.

This is the view of Charles Shuman, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, who claims the older the child, the poorer the diet.

"We often boast," he added, "that Americans are the best-fed people in the world, thanks to our efficient and productive agriculture and our modern food industry. But our record in upgrading nutritional standards in eating habits needs to be improved."

Commenting on the poor eating habits of some teen-agers, Mr. Shuman said that "they gave 'no appetite' and lack of time as the chief reasons."

Help young people pay sufficient attention not only to their physical needs but also to the proper development of their minds, hearts and souls.

You can thus be instrumental in aiding youth to make the most of the abilities entrusted to them by the Lord.

"Encourage one another and build one another up." (1 Thessalonians 5:11)

Inspire young people, O Holy Spirit, to be sensible in matters of self-development.

Clearing Up Ark Issues, Questions

Editor, Independent-Journal:

For sometime I have been concerned over action allegedly taken by the State Lands Commission regarding the matter of arksites dwellers along Corte Madera Creek. As one of three Commission members, I have consistently endeavored to give every consideration — as indeed have the other two members — to the problems affecting those on the arksites.

To my knowledge all of the persons living on arksites locations have expressed their satisfaction — both personally and collectively — that the Commission has attempted to act in their best interest. Therefore, I feel it is necessary to make clear the Commission's action as related to the arksite residents of Marin County.

At the time termination notices were issued, the County Flood Control District informed the State Lands Commission that work on phase 1 of the flood control project below the Bon Air bridge would of necessity cut off the sewer service to those sites above the bridge. As the result of the protests by the ark dwellers whose sewer service would be termintated, the Flood Control District worked with the U. S. Corps of Engineers to realign the channel in order to permit continuation of sewer service to the arks above the bridge. The initial recommendation for increased rentals to these people was intended to bring these leases in line with comparable leases throughout the State. The rentals for these new leases were based upon the current fair market value of the amount of state lands being occupied by each lessee. Numerous objections were voiced at the proposed raise in rents because of both the shortness of notice and the probability that the lessees would not be able to remain for any extended period of time.

In evaluating objections the Commission changed its earlier recommendation. The recommendation was that cancellation notices which were to have been effective July 22, 1966, be cancelled, and that the lessees be notified that the new rental schedule would become effective commencing January 1, 1967.

The lessees objected to paying the new rental fees determined by the Commission's staff, as well as expressing concern because present laws do not provide for compensation for the taking of their improvements by the Flood Control District.

At this time it is not known when federal funds will be appropriated for that portion of the flood control project which will of necessity eliminate the arks in question. It is possible that this potrion of the project will go forward within a year to 18 months, although it is more probable that several years will elapse before construction is actually commenced. In order to take this into consideration, I amended my earlier motion to provide that termination notices be cancelled, that the lessees be permitted to continue occupancy for the balance of the year, with a re-examination of a rental increase to take place at that time.

I hope this will clarify whatever confusion might exist as to my role, and that of both Controller Cranston and Finance Director Champion, as the three Commissioners.

It's Not Enough To Say Too Bad

Editor, Independent-Journal:

My conscience won't let me stop thinking about Timothy Buckley. I feel as if I'd let a person drown because I didn't want to get my feet wet.

It's all part of belonging to a system that could have saved Timothy's life — and didn't. It just wasn't enough that the baby sitter complained . . . that the Welfare Department investigated . . . or that the "mother" protested the beatings.

And, then, after the fact of death — a death that came after a very short life full of neglect, fear and perhaps pain — it just wasn't enough that everyone read his paper, said "tsk tsk" and then went back to complaining about living in a welfare give away state.

And it certainly wasn't enough that the "person" accused of committing this crime was charged with felony child beating and put at $11,000 bail. That his bail was reduced to $7,500 is unspeakable. I'm still thinking about the extortionist who's bail was set at $25,000. But then the life of a 16-month-old baby can't be as valuable as cold, hard cash extracted from a "one time playboy" . . .

This whole tragedy just serves to remind me how lenient society is. In my book, it's just another reason why unfit "mothers" should be prevented from having more children. And why the dregs of society who call themselves human beings should be dispatched as quickly as possible.

It serves to remind me how little good my pittance that goes to aid welfare really does. Though, I will gladly pay and pay and pay as long as there's once chance in a thousand that it could give one ounce of comfort to a deprived child. And, last, this tragedy serves to remind me how much I do object to supporting the riff raff who now inhabit the county jail and the death row at San Quentin prison.

But, then, if we were truly humane, we'd do away with prisons and gas chambers . . . and make the punishment fit the crime . . . In the case of Timothy Buckley, a crime against a very young child, a baby, in fact, who couldn't have understood why he was being abused. Even I don't understand it. The only thing I understand is that society is too easy on child abusers.

Too bad we can't revise the welfare system and make every penny count toward aiding these children. Too bad we can't make it mandatory for unfit mothers to be sterilized. And, in the case of Timothy Buckley, too bad we can't make the wheels of justice grind out a truly fitting punishment — one that would make future offenders think twice about using the very sensitive, very vulnerable body of a child for their own private whipping post.

But to say "too bad" just isn't enough.

A Point Needs To Be Cleared

Editor, Independent-Journal:

The San Francisco Chronicle carried a story (So did the I-J — Editor.) that the Marin County assessment ratio is 20.1. The Marin County Assessor's notice of assessment on May 27, 1966, claimed that the assessment ratio is 23 per cent. Does not this discrepancy warrant looking into, so the facts may be known

Talkative Loser Nixon Keeps In Spotlight With Free Advice

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard M. Nixon, out of office almost six years and declining to say whether he has presidential ambitions for 1968, has made an almost incredible number of speeches and statements in 1966.

In the course of them the former vice president probably has given President Johnson more unsolicited advice than any public figure on how to win the war in Viet Nam.

THIS WEEK he tried his hand at prophecy — or mind-reading — about Johnson and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y. Both men reacted caustically.

Nixon says his only object in speechmaking is to campaign for Republicans seeking election this year. But, since all this keeps him high in the Republican consciousness if he wants another try at the presidency two years from now, what are his thoughts about that?

"I am not going to speculate on 1968," he says.

HE SEEMED politically dead for a while, after he lost the 1960 presidential race and his try for the governorship of California in 1962, but he didn't stay mute long.

By the summer of 1963 he was back in full bloom explaining: "As the last Republican presidential candidate, my role now is to try to guide the thoughts of the Republican party. I will make some speeches and do some writing."

It might have seemed the next losing Republican presidential candidate — Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona in 1964— would automatically become the party "guide," replacing Nixon who had first criticized him and then campaigned for him.

But Goldwater became practically speechless after his defeat. Nixon moved into this vacuum and ever since has done more to stay in the public eye than any Republican around.

NIXON'S SPEECHES and statements range from Viet Nam to inflation. He has advice for Republicans on what their attitude on Viet Nam should be.

While he approves Johnson's goals in the Vietnamese war, he criticizes Johnson's way of trying to reach those goals, then advises him how to do it.

He keeps pumping up Republican hopes for this fall's congressional elections, although he is not always consistent. Most of the time he says they will win 40 House seats but he also has said they will win only 30.

At the end of 1965 he was saying the Republicans were badly split. Now he says the Democrats are split, and not only over the war.

IN MAY HE SAID Johnson and Kennedy were locked in a struggle for control of the Democratic party. In July he was saying the Democrats are divided into two parties: one headed by Kennedy, the other by Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

But this week he said Kennedy didn't have a chance to wrest the Democratic presidential nomination from Johnson in 1968 although suggesting Johnson might want Kennedy as his running mate rather than Humphrey.

Kennedy told reporters: "I've never observed that Mr. Nixon's advice was very helpful to the Republicans."

Johnson said his view of Humphrey's performance would not be guided by "either the wishes or desires or the predictions of an ex-vice president."

Negro Officer Lack Depresses Visitor

By WHITNEY M. YOUNG JR.
(Second of four articles)

The terrible lack of Negro officers, which I found to be the case among the United States military forces in Viet Nam, was depressing.

As I moved about that haunted, war weary land touching the South China Sea, visions flashed across my mind from the now-dimming days of World War II, when I myself added my efforts as a G.I. to the holocaust in Europe.

HERE WE ARE in Viet Nam, I thought—Negroes again giving our all in the cause of our country, and yet, still practically non-entities in positions of top command and responsibility.

Oh, don't get me wrong. For one can't actually go a literal half-mile in Viet Nam without seeing a Negro in command. But they're only non-commissioned officers.

One sees a tough Negro master sergeant, or lesser sergeant, all spit 'n polish and bursting with pride and esprit de corps, barking orders and letting the fellows under him know who's in command. He looks fine and he's doing a bang-up job. His white officers are the first to tell you so.

THE NAVY, of course, was the last of the services to break down its color bar against Negro officers. On a 3,000-man crew aircraft carrier, on which we stayed overnight, there was one lieutenant junior grade, the ranking Negro officer. There are some 240 officers on the carrier.

It was quite a contrast to see, early the next morning, several hundred enlisted men rushing around, working feverishly readying jets and other aircraft for takeoff.

There were whites and Negroes and other minorities working, doing the jobs they had to do. It was a beautiful picture of racial harmony, teamwork in action. The previous evening we had dined with the ship's officers and the only brown faces present were ours, the hordes of Filipino waiters and one Negro who appeared to have charge of the water glasses.

Lest I mislead in my thoughts, when I speak of the lack of Negro officers in Viet Nam, I am not suggesting that the U. S. should pack over as fast as possible Negro officers from other parts of the world. But I do feel that there should be much up-grading of those who are there and the creation of others, some of the non-coms, who are already there and who have proven themselves on the field of battle.

A MOST DISTURBING element of the talk with the white commanding officers, wherever we travelled, was their apparent concerted effort to try to impress upon us that they had no idea how many Negroes they had in their outfits.

Another point of concern which I noted was that a number of lower grade Negro G. I.s complained that they had trouble getting promotions. They said they could not attribute it to discrimination; however, they also did not know what else to attribute it to.

Finally, a big point of concern I found was that the officers also have little knowledge of what the Negro G. I.s and their other troops do on their off-duty time.

WE VISITED BARS, for example, to check reports that there is bias at some of them. We found that a number of them, across the Saigon River, were frequented solely by Negroes and others solely by whites.

From all indications, this was due to de facto segregation, primarily by choice.

IN A LAND where the Negro or white guy in the trench next to you may be the one to save your life from the enemy, in the next moment, the signs of separation one spots every now and then between these men is deplorable and depressing.

Undersea Craft Begin To Pay Off

Deep Diving Useful On Varied Projects

NEW YORK (UPI) — Many big companies are spending large sums on oceanographic research but until very recently no one except the oil companies engaged in offshore drilling could figure on any return on the investment.

Now the underseas division of Westinghouse Electric Corp. at Baltimore has made a breakthrough, earning substantial revenue during the past year with its Cachalot sustained deep diving system, according to Larry Somers, Westinghouse ocean engineer.

Westinghouse has rented out the Cachalot equipment for $80,000 a month for two important emergency jobs — one at Smith Mountain Dam, Va., for a repair project deep under water on the power dam's outlet grates and the other for closing the wells and recovering a huge offshore drilling platform of Gulf Oil Corp. wrecked by a hurricane in the Gulf of Mexico.

"This demonstrates beyond all doubt the commercial practicality of oceanographic projects to enable divers to live for periods of as long as a week under deep water conditions and to work at depths of 200 to 450 feet for four hours a day or more," Somers said.

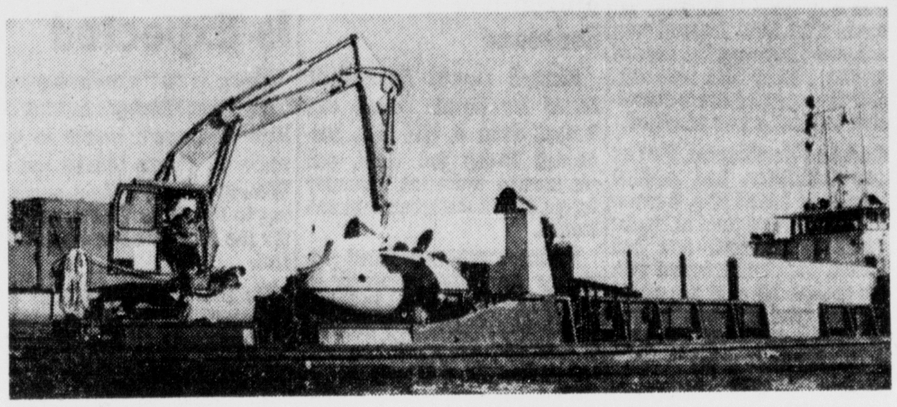
Somers said Westingtouse ocean engineers believe the Cachalot system, named for the sperm whale, can be built for safe use at depths of perhaps 1,500 feet and that it ultimately may enable divers to put in almost an eight-hour working day in the depths.

The Cachalot consists of two chambers. In the larger one divers live for a week at a time under atmospheric conditions simulating the pressure they must endure while diving. This chamber is kept on the surface. The smaller submersible chamber is lowered by a crane into the water and raised the same way. It is attached to the surface chamber by an air lock so the divers can enter and leave without being exposed to surface atmosphere.

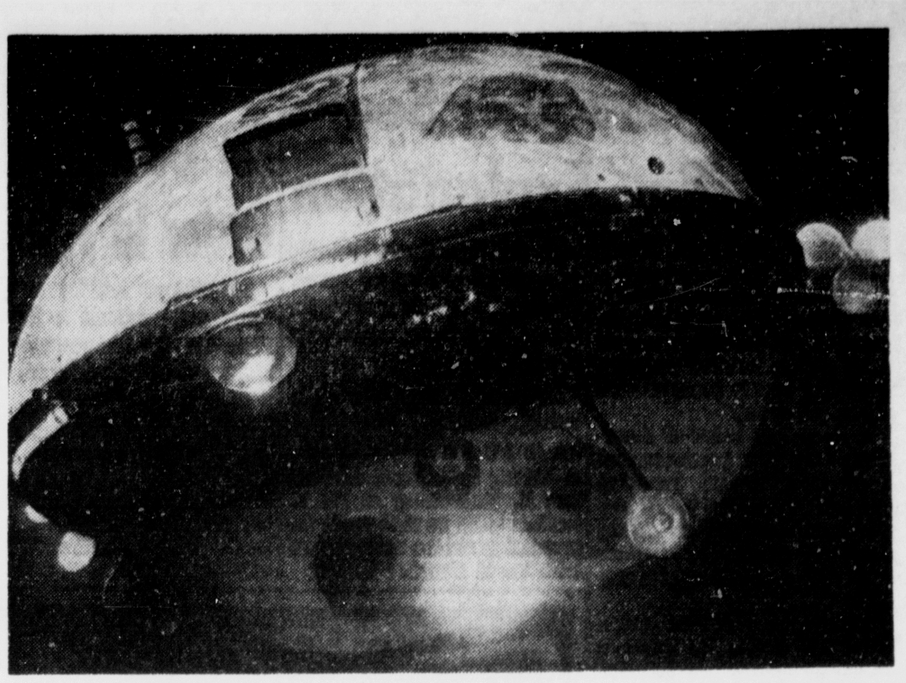
Both chambers contain a special atmosphere mixture of oxygen, helium and nitrogen and the divers, wearing special suits, carry apparatus to recirculate and "scrub" their own air while they are working.

"Scientists are convinced the minerals are there. The mechanics of drilling many thousands of feet below the ocean's floor have been solved. The big obstacle is making it possible for divers to work continuously enough at great depths to install the equipment and maintain it. Cachalot is solving that problem."

TWO-WAY EXPLORER— Astronaut M. Scott Carpenter has turned his talents to developing techniques for man to live and work underwater, including a 30-day test period in Sealab II.



READY TO DIVE—The three-man, free-moving Deepster 4000 is being hoisted over the side from its support ship, the Burch Tide, for a record-setting trip to the ocean bottom off Point Loma. Leased by Westinghouse to Navy researchers, the craft is one of several being tested for such uses as underwater mining and deep-water rescue work.



BUG-EYED MONSTER — Looking like an undersea flying saucer, the Deepster 4000 carries propellers at its side for maneuvering; boasts brilliant outside lights and thick-lensed eyes so its three-man crew can see the ocean bottom. Directly above the glowing light is a remote-control robot hand and grapple.

INNER-SPACE JOURNEY—During the Deepster 4000 maiden test this month, the crew planted this flag near the Coronado Islands offshore of San Diego, then photographed it with the sub's lights, four-fifths of a mile below the surface. (UPI Telephotos)

Scientists Anxious To Kiss A Hurricane With Crystals

By RICHARD F. NEWCOMB
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Now if only the girls will cooperate, this may be a big year for hurricane research. The government has assembled the biggest team ever—at least 17 planes and 160 expert personnel—but it can't use just any old hurricane.

What it needs is a "mature" hurricane—no half-blown ones, please—and in the right place. It must lie in the area between Bermuda and Puerto Rico before it can be seeded with safety. No hurricane that could touch land within 36 hours will be seeded; the scientists aren't certain their seeding might not increase the intensity of the storm.

Seeding experiments — dropping silver iodide crystals into the storm—started with Esther in 1961. That was mostly to try out different methods of seeding. There were no suitable hurricanes the next year, though planes made a couple of dry runs on Daisy off Florida. In 1963, the planes pounced on Beulah, a mature hurricane, and the storm did change—the central pressure in the eye rose and the maximum winds moved away from the center. But that may have been chance.

The next year, hunting was bad, and last year Betsy and Elena looked promising for a while, but then faded. This year, if the hurricanes are ready, so are the hunters.

It's a joint project, called Stormfury, by the Navy Weather Service and the Department of Commerce's Environmental Science Services Administration (ESSA). It will continue through Oct. 15.

On 72 hours' notice, Navy, ESSA and Air Force planes from Miama, Jacksonville and elsewhere will converge on Roosevelt Roads, Puerto Rico, operations center for the experiments. If the hurricane develops in the right place, and the right intensity, the planes will go.

A Navy A3B Skywarrior will pass through the hurricane five times, at two-hour intervals, spewing 7-pound canisters of silver iodide crystals. This seeding will be more massive and sustained than ever before. The canisters, 3 by 8 inches, are thrown out by especially modified photo-flash launchers, and burn for 40 seconds through a 20,000-foot fall.

The crystals will be dropped not only on the central column, or chimney, of the storm, but also on some of the rainwall curtains that ring the chimney. The seeding is expected to convert the cold water in the clouds into ice crystals, thus releasing some of the latent heat in the storm and taming it somewhat.

The other planes, using special instruments, will monitor any changes in the storm. They will fly through the hurricane, at heights from 1,000 feet to 60,000 feet, from three hours before the seeding until six hours after it, a total experiment of 17 hours.

What will it all prove? The scientists aren't sure, but they hope for (1) a better understanding of hurricanes, (2) improved predictions of hurricane actions, and (3) possible modifications to reduce the destructive force of the giant storms. If only the girls will cooperate.

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

A U.S. Infantry unit mopping up the last pocket of Viet Cong resistance after a bloody two-day battle called for air support Friday.

Two F-100 Supersabres swooped in at 200 miles an hour with napalm and 20mm cannon fire.

But the fiery napalm and the cannon shells ripped the American position, killing several men and wounding more than a score.

The tragedy occurred near Phu Loi, 30 miles north of Saigon, where a battalion of the Army's 1st Infantry Division had killed 70 Viet Cong while suffering "moderate" losses. Each side had about 800 men in the fight.

"We called the air strikes in close because we were in close contact with the enemy," said 1st Division Commander Maj. Gen. William E. Depuy.

"We did not deliberately call this strike down on ourselves. It was an error of only 50 yards and, at 200 miles an hour, these things can happen and it did happen."

Depuy said the pilots were not responsible for the mishap.

Around The World, Around The Nation:

Washington—President Johnson began a "nonpolitical" swing through the northwest. He made a similar trip to the northeast last week.

New Haven, Conn.—Five persons were shot to death in a city-owned low-rent duplex home.

Hampton, Va.—The first pictures of earth from the vantage point of the moon were received from Lunar Orbiter.

Cape Kennedy — An un-manned Apollo spacecraf was successfully launched and traveled three-fourths around the world before splashdown. The next Apollo ship to go up is expected to have three astronauts aboard.

Saigon — Viet Cong terrorists dressed as South Vietnamese soldiers raked a police station with gunfire, killing three South Vietnamese marines.

Saigon — Gen. William C. Westmoreland, commander of U.S. forces in Viet Nam, issued restrictions on attacking boats from the air. It was a result of an Air Force attack on a U.S. Coast Guard cutter by mistake.

Soviets Soar Into Space, But Their Taxis Don't Run

By ANTHONY C. COLLINGS

While the driver was bragging about these conquests, his cab broke down.

He fiddled with wires dangling under the steering wheel. Sparks flashed. The cab moved again.

"It needs repair," he said.

On the topmost girder, big red letters against the sky spelled out SLAVA KPSS, which stands for "Glory to the Communist party of the Soviet Union."

The last S teetered.

It is all familiar. There is almost nothing to make it seem unreal.

Then the visitor sees the Kremlin.

At night big red stars glow on the tips of spires.

The feeling of strangeness and unreality creeps back. The Kremlin is a reminder that this is the citadel of an alien philosophy, the bastion of the Communist government's might and dominance.

But a second look at Red Square shows that it is not as empty as it seems. Despite the chilling walls, part of the square is filled with the natural warmth of ordinary people.

Women sell souvenir photos, tourists gawk at the tomb, soldiers eye a pretty girl, and children announce to parents that they have to go to the bathroom.

American tourists awake in a modern hotel room and for a minute the comfortable surroundings remind them of home. But on the radio they hear "Americansky imperialism."

This is followed by a militant voice counting time to morning calisthenics. To help keep time a forlorn piano bangs away.

Just across the street, there are no children's games in Lubyanka prison.

Everywhere, Communist propaganda posters boast of economic output, and stores along fashionable Gorky Street display glittering hi-fi sets and cocktail dresses.

In contrast to this sophistication, shouting women push and shove outside one store to buy boxes of macaroni from a sidewalk vendor.

Nearby, the scene is watched by a pretty girl carrying flowers a date gave her. Her date, a soldier in uniform, takes off his cap and jokingly puts it on her head.

Deep down in the subway, a stern-faced colonel holds a briefcase and waits for a train A few feet away, a young mother smiles fondly as her husband holds their child.

On Peace Avenue, men on their way home from work wait for a bus and read the day's paper. They have a wide choice of papers to buy—all government-censored.

A visitor notices such things—the Communist slogans, the censored press, the disregard for consumer wishes represented by inadequate restaurants.

Nation's Planners See Watts As Example Of Their Failures

By FRED McGEHAN
Advance News Service

WASHINGTON — America's city planners are making an agonizing reappraisal and admitting they have failed to meet human needs.

"City planners have already done very well in losing sight of people," one of the nation's top planners told his colleagues last week.

"Traditional city planners think of the city in somewhat non or inhuman terms. It's as though educational planners should turn things over to the gym teachers — the experts in physical education," chided Bernard M. Gross, head of a national planning studies program at Syracuse University.

The concept of physical planning alone, Gross told a national planning convention in Portland, Ore., "has been riddled with bullets on the streets of Watts and Harlem. The body stinks. Let's bury it quickly."

This admission of failure after more than 30 years of effort comes at a critical moment in the life of American cities.

Even as planners flayed themselves in Portland a U.S. Senate committee was castigating leading federal planners in Washington for allowing cities to slide into vast Negro ghettos with all of their attendant social and economic ills.

Under persistent questioning by Sen. Abraham Ribicoff (D-Conn.), Welfare Secretary John W. Gardner admitted the government has no over-all plan for attacking the cities' problems.

Planners and scientists, meeting in Portland under the sponsorship of the American Institute of Planners, agreed that the old political and economic forms — zoning, building regulation, subdivision and capital budgeting—have outgrown their usefulness and now impede renewal.

"They have little bearing on problems of civil rights, inadequate education, poverty, ugliness, pollution and traffic congestion," the experts said.

They also disputed the idea that urban problems can be resolved by running them through computers and using new methods of problem solving pioneered by the defense and space industries.

"It's soft headed," Gross admitted, "to think much help can be provided by the newfangled hard-good techniques of linear programming systems analysis and... budgeting borrowed from the leavings of the Rand Corp.'s work on missile systems."

To tackle the cities' ills the experts urged solutions ranging from political action to establishment of a new science of "environmental biomedicine."

Dr. Rene J. Dubois, a prominent bacteriologist on the staff of Rockefeller University, proposed the new science. He said it "will help in predicting and hopefully controlling man's responses to the environmental conditions prevailing in the modern world."

He advocated teams of scientists to probe the uniquely urban problems of biological and chemical pollution. "The constant and unavoidable exposure to the stimuli of urban and industrial civilazation."

He included emotional trauma and loneliness in congested cities, "the monotony and tensions of regimented life," and the "boredom arising from automated work and indeed from compulsory leisure."

Stephen Carr, professor of planning at the aMssachusetts Institute of eTchnology, called for a marshalling of "all existing political mechanisms plus others that have hardly been tried or are not yet developed" to identify "the real clients of design" and to establish "meaningful communication with them."

Once the needs of all social groups have been defined, he said, it is then the planner's job to translate them into homes, stores, places of business, recreation areas, transportation systems, and other modes of urban life.

"To be sure," he told his colleagues, "there are many economic and social barriers on the way to such an achievement.

"But we are now in the midst of a revolution to increase the participation of people in shaping the social, economic and urban forms which in turn will determine the quality of their lives. We city planners and designers by the traditions of our profession and the solemnity of our avowals that 'the city is the people" must be with such a revolution."

County Chamber Seeks Motel Tax Explanation

Directors of the Marin County Chamber of Commerce yesterday agreed that further illucidation was needed from county supervisors on the motel tax request and its relation to contributions of county funds to individual chambers.

In June, the board of supervisors adopted a promotion and development budget providing just half of previous year's contributions to chambers, saying additional funds should come from pooled collection of a motel tax.

Supervisors earlier adopted a motel tax, saying the proceeds should go into such a pool and city councils should adopt a similar tax and contribute to the pool.

Directors of the newly formed county-wide chamber, meeting at the Bank of Marin in San Rafael, said yesterday that city councils had been reluctant to contribute funds to the county.

"The county isn't asking the cities for anything," protested Jack M. Douglas, the county's director of economic development.

He said the funds collected from the cities would probably be administered by the county chamber itself, along with the money contributed from the county motel tax.

Chamber President Eugene A. Ostaggi, however, asked Douglas to get further clarification in writing from Supervisor Ernest N. Kettenhofen on his intentions when he first made the proposal to cut the county's contribution to chamber by half.

Sonoma Boy Picked Up In Corte Madera

A 16-year-old Sonoma boy, on a visit to his grandmother in Corte Madera, was picked up by Corte Madera police Thursday for questioning about a gun used in a Sonoma County armed robbery on July 15.

On a country road north of Sonoma, a man was robbed of his wallet, containing $15, and his clothes.

Chief suspect in the holdup, Gary Redford, 24, of Sonoma, allegedly admitted to sheriff's deputies he held the gun on the man while an accomplice took the money.

The victim was unable to identify the 16-year-old as the second person in a line-up today, said Inspector H. A. Panizzere of the Sonoma County Sheriff's Department.

"Redford did tell us, however, that he got the gun from the boy's father, so he is being questioned further by the juvenile authorities," Panizzere said.

Court Asked For Contempt Order In Trial

An affidavit seeking a contempt order against a former juror was filed late yesterday in Marin Superior Court by the district attorney's office.

It alleges that Mrs. Mary Lawson, 72 Oak Springs Drive, San Anselmo, failed to divulge personal beliefs that would prevent her from being a fair and impartial juror in the assault trial of William L. Bland, 19, and that she failed to heed frequent admonitions not to discuss the case while it was in progress.

Judge Harold J. Haley declared a mistrial Wednesday on grounds that Mrs. Lawson was overheard discussing the case in Sausalito early that morning, and that improper cross-examination testimony was admitted.

Robert Worthington, Point Reyes contractor, had notified the court he heard Mrs. Lawson say she was a Congress of Racial Equality member and had marched and demonstrated with these groups. He said she added she "was glad she was on the jury so that she could keep the boy (Bland) from going to jail."

She has denied the charges.

The affidavit seeks an order from Judge Haley directing Mrs. Lawson to show why she shouldn't be held in contempt.

Blanchfield Sentence

Richard Donald Blanchfield, 27, of 149 Novato Street, San Rafael, drew a $110 fine, suspended 30-day jail term, and six months probation Thursday for an Aug. 1 disturbance in San Rafael.

Sentence was pronounced yesterday by Judge Leonard A. Thomas in Marin Municipal Court. Blanchfield was accused of disturbing the peace, obstructing police in performance of their duties, and battery on Patrolman M. J. Conlin.

Tiburon Pub Settlement Is Expected

There is an "excellent possibility" that Monday's hearing on Eric Hodgman's license to operate the Prince Charlie Inn in Tiburon will not be held, according to Donald L. Tipton, counsel for the Alcoholic Beverage Control.

He said the hearing may be "disposed of by a stipulated agreement on all parties before the hearing."

By the proposed stipulations, all charges would be dropped if Hodgman would agree to give up his license.

The hearing is scheduled for 10 a.m. in the Tiburon City Council chambers, 80 Main Street, on the city's accusation charging the controversial pub with numerous violations. A previous ABC hearing Aug. 15 in the civic center was postponed.

On-Sale License

SACRAMENTO (CNS)—James O. Reimel, state director of alcoholic beverage control, announced issuance of the following license:

New on-sale beer and wine to Glenn B. Eng, Eng's Restaurant, 907 B St., San Rafael.

No New Marin City Center

The board had considered building a new center, but now favors renovation, secretary-treasurer Gabe Jackson said today. The district has received a $240,000 grant from the federal government for the project.

About 20 persons attended the meeting, which was held to get the reaction of residents of the community to the plan.

The board is to vote on the plan at its next regular meeting on Sept. 15.

Monte: A Champion And A Celebrity

See Page M2

Marin Champion Is This Country's Second Best-Known Golden Retriever

By DON KEOWN

Guide Dog's Monte has four careers going for him—all of them successfully.

As a show dog he has earned his championship, recently climaxing his ring career with a Golden Retrievers best-of-breed win at the big Del Monte show.

As breeding stock for his legal owner, Guide Dogs for the Blind, Monte has sired 33 puppies that have developed into working guide dogs.

As a watchdog he has performed efficiently for Mrs. Jane Davison, the Marinwood woman who is responsible for his care.

And as a companion and a pet, Mrs. Davison says, he has been superb.

MONTE'S relationship with Guide Dogs for the Blind began in puppyhood when Clarence Pfaffenberger, vice president of that non-profit organization and author of "New Knowledge of Behavior in Dogs," selected him as future breeding stock for the humanitarian program.

Monte passed the necessary tests. While never trained to work in harness himself, he has fathered what is approaching a record number of Golden Retrievers that have served as eyes for the blind.

He did not come into Mrs. Davison's hands until he was a mature 3-year-old.

Mrs. Davison says it happened this way:

"I HAD BEEN recently widowed and was living alone, when someone broke into my house. By chance, I was telling a friend, Mrs. Mellon Hunton, about the unnerving experience. Her advice was to get a watchdog."

And the place to get the watchdog, Mrs. Hunton told Mrs. Davison, was Guide Dogs for the Blind where she, herself, had obtained a pet.

Mrs. Davison visited the school on Los Ranchitos Road "expecting to wind up with a ferocious German Shepherd. Instead, I found myself responsible for a big, friendly retriever."

Nevertheless, she says, "I was terrified at first. His sheer bulk awed me."

IT WAS TO be a full year, she adds, before she had accustomed herself completely to the big animal that shared her home. "I had had absolutely no previous experience with dogs."

Guide Dogs for the Blind remains the nominal owner of Monte and similar breeding dogs that have been placed "on loan" in the care of private persons.

With Monte in her house, Mrs. Davison had no further problems with burglars.

It was, Mrs. Davison remembers, at the insistence of her neighbor, Mrs. Patricia McLeod, who has since moved to Rogue River, Ore., that she decided to "make the plunge."

Ordinarily, Guide Dogs for the Blind has not encouraged extensive showing of its dogs, although good conformation has always been emphasized.

An exception was made in Monte's case and Guide Dogs gave its approval for a new career for the retriever.

SINCE THEN, Monte has piled up a formidable record of successes.

At first, he worked under Mrs. McLeod's handling. Then Jim McManus, a professional han-

MONTE'S FIRST HANDLER in the show ring was Mrs. Patricia McLeod, former Marinwood resident now living in Oregon. dler, took over.

"There has been a special rapport between the two," says Mrs. Davison.

She adds that while Monte has not been trained for field trials, he has proven a willing worker, hitting the water well in pursuit of fallen fowl, just as has father, Rocky Mack, a field champion, did before him.

MONTE'S BIG win at Del Monte—"my biggest thrill," says Mrs. Davison—marks his virtual retirement from the ring.

"He will be shown now only in veteran classes," she says.

Monte will continue to breed puppies for Guide Dogs for the Blind. Monte is now 6, and is not expected to be retired from stud until he is 8.

THEN HE WILL become Mrs. Davison's property, for Guide Dogs for the Blind will relinquish ownership to her when it no longer has any need for Monte's services.

Eventually, Mrs. Davison, an employee of the adult education office at College of Marin, says, Champion Guide Dog's Monte will retire to a life of leisure and relaxation on ranch property she owns in Oregon.

"He has earned his rest," she says.

In the meantime he has a playmate, a lively dachshund named Pitou, and the two spend most of the summer romping over the Oregon ranchlands.

ALERT, FRIENDLY, handsome Monte is, according to Mrs. Davison, "probably the second best-known Golden Retriever in the country."

His fame is exceeded only by that of blind jazz pianist George Shearing's Guide Dog Lee, who has reaped reams of publicity because of his relationship with the musician.

And even Lee, Mrs. Davidson is confident, must lead a somewhat less busy life than does Monte, the dog with four careers—all going at once.

By C. J. Catania

The American form of manufacturing entails many suppliers. Whether you purchase an automobile or a stereo Tuner-Amplifier, the item is built from numerous individual parts. Carburetors, generators, spark plugs, tires, etc., are a few of the items purchased by a car manufacturer. Condensers, resistors, tubes or transistors, transformers, etc., are a few of the parts purchased for assembly into stereo components by the manufacturer. Obviously, these parts are purchased in enormous quantities. From experience and statistics we know that out of every thousand of an item, some of them are going to be defective. That means that a particular automobile or a stereo component is not going to meet standards. If the faulty component is of a minor nature, a casual inspection will allow the fault to go unnoticed.

Is all of this important to the consumer? Yes, because of the possibility of one or more faulty items going into a product, the manufacturer has a warranty period for his article. The theory being that if a part or parts are defective in a unit, the faults will show up when the customer puts the unit to use, then it can be repaired by the dealer.

What is the significant difference in buying a stereo system or component from a reputable dealer or from a discount house? You save a few dollars when you make the initial purchase from the discount house. However, because of the saving passed along to you, not much, if any, dealer testing went into your component before you purchased it. Because of the saving passed along to you, a highly qualified and experienced service department is probably not a part of the discount house. Your unit may have minor faults which deteriorate the over-all performance and yet you may not be aware of it. After trouble appears or develops, it may be difficult to get efficient and reliable repair service, if any service at all, from the discount house. In fact, you may have an extremely long wait while the unit goes to a factory warranty station that is completely overloaded with work.

When you purchase from a reputable dealer, you get fully tested components. You save many dollars in the long run. You get personalized and expert service on your components during and after warranty.

A Rising Young Musician

Michael Isador Already Has Heard Acclaim

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Catholicity of taste and ability to perform the works of composers differing widely in style are among the outstanding characteristics of concert pianist Michael Isador.

This was the impression gained both from talking with the young musician—soon to be 27—at his home in Mill Valley, and from reading European critical reviews.

A NATIVE OF Philadelphia, Michael is not yet well known in the Bay Area, although he has been heard in recitals on television station KQED, at the San Francisco Conservatory of Music, where he teaches, and at the University of California, where he will be teaching this fall.

He has lived in Mill Valley just one year.

Critical reviews, such as the one in the Berlin Telegraf indicate that his name should not remain little known very long. This reviewer said, "Michael Isador is the most talented pianist that Berlin has heard for a long time."

A MUSICAL prodigy, born the only child of not particularly musical parents, Michael began playing nursery rhymes at the age of 2½. Recognizing his talent, his mother, a teacher of languages in Philadelphia, took him at the age of 3 to a very good teacher, who told her to bring him back when he was 4.

He studied four year under a pupil of the famous Russian teacher Isabel Vengerova, and then he began studying under Genia Robinor, who has also been the teacher of the sensational young pianist Andre Watts, whom Michael knew when Andre was 8 years old.

"She was a fantastic teacher," he remarked.

Michael remained with her until he was graduated from high school, ninth in standing in a class of 400 with a scholarship to Brandeis University in Waltham, Mass. There he studied with Alexander Borowsky. Later he studied one year with the famed Rosina Lhevinne at the Juilliard School of Music in New York City.

HE THEN WENT to Europe for the summer and remained to enter the competitions for acceptance at the Paris Conservatory. He was successful and after a year won the coveted Premier Prix, Primer Nomme. It was the second time in the recent history of the conservatory that it had been granted to a foreigner.

At this point he met some faculty members in the music department of the University of California at Berkeley, who persuaded him to enter the university.

At the end of a year he was graduated with a Bachelor of Arts Degree with major in music and minor in French and a Woodrow Wilson Fellowship to the University of Illinois.

INSTEAD, however, on advice of Mme. Lhevinne, Michael returned to London to study with Ilona Kabos. He lived in London from 1962 until last August. During this time he appeared in many concerts in England, France, Germany, Sweden, Holland and Belgium and was on radio broadcasts from the British Broadcasting Co. and on French, Dutch and Swiss radio.

In London he had met Wesley Hildreth and Nancy Williams of Mill Valley just before they were married there in December, 1964. He gave the bride in marriage as proxy for her father.

The following February, when

"SEA SPRAY SPOTS"

Beware when you wear your silks near the sea, advise experts at the National Institute of Drycleaning. Salt water and salt spray are hard on fabric, especially silk. Salt can either deteriorate the fabric or permanently affect the dye.

Member drycleaners have sent dresses to the Institute's Garment Analysis Laboratory that were literally peppered with small holes. Each of the dresses had been worn to the shore. Salt spray was the culprit.

Prompt action will save the silk. Simply tell your drycleaner what happened, or what you suspect, and he'll be able to flush the damaging salt particles from the garment when he cleans and finishes it.

AT THE PIANO keyboard, Michael Isador is a study of concentration. Away from his classical music he has interests that include collecting old car ads, art and cooking, and an enthusiasm for rock 'n' roll recordings.

the University of California engaged him to give a recital at Hertz Hall in Berkeley, the Hildreths invited him to come to Mill Valley, he says, he fell in love with the pretty little town and decided to live there after returning to Europe for six months to fulfill concert engagements.

LAST AUGUST the Hildreths found a secluded house off Summit Avenue that was ideal for the young bachelor and his Steinway grand piano. He does some private teaching there, which he says he loves even if some pupils are not exceptionally talented. "They work hard and enjoy their lessons."

Michael doesn't play much contemporary music, though he admires Messiaen and Bartok. For a concert last December he played the Bartok "Third Concerto" with Michael Senturia conducting the University of California orchestra. "He is a wonderful conductor and musician," he commented.

Michael prefers French music, he says, especially that of Debussy and Ravel, and performs a lot of Bach, Schumann and Bartok.

"I LIKE ALMOST all music except that of Liszt, Wagner and Tschaikovsky," he said.

"I love rock 'n' roll," he says, "not the old Elvis Presley kind but the new rock 'n' roll of groups like the Beatles and the Animals.

"It is actually like Greek modal music. They're doing their own stuff with a lot of imagination and creativity, using unconventional types of instruments."

HIS HOBBIES include collecting original art, mostly works of his friends and always of people except for one of a fascinating lion, which he says is human too. He also collects old car advertisements and has a book full of them dating back to 1891. An avid sports car fan, he drives a white Porsche.

Michael's most recent interest is trying to get some musicians together to play chamber music. Mrs. Joe (Juliette) Dillard of Mill Valley, who has just retired as a cellist with the Oakland Symphony, has the same interest, and they often get together to play favorite works.

Miwoks: The First Marinites

THIS DIORAMA at the Louise A. Boyd Natural Science Museum in San Rafael depicts accurately the simple life of the coastal Miwoks, Marin's early Indian inhabitants. The Miwoks lived in small villages of family groups and depended for their livelihood upon that which nature provided without too much effort on their own part. It was a primitive kind of life, but one that has attracted the interest of 17-year-old Lilli Sommer of Woodacre, a future anthropologist who has directed much of her attention to Marin's own Indians, and who this summer has been teaching a course on that subject for junior high age youths at the Boyd Museum. (Independent-Journal photos)

Primitive Coastal Indians

By DON KEOWN

Say "Indian" and most of us think of the fierce Comanche, the proud Sioux, the courageous Apache or the skillful Navajo.

Not 17-year-old, anthropologist-to-be Lilli Sommer of Woodacre.

The Sir Francis Drake High School graduate, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sommer, thinks of the coastal Miwoks — and not just because they once inhabited her native Marin County.

"I THINK I like them best," she says, "because they were so primitive. When you study them, you are looking at basic, unsophisticated, very honest human beings."

Next month Lilli will enroll at the University of New Mexico where she plans to major in anthropology.

Her interest in that field stems, she says, from a book she read some two years ago about the ancient Mayan civilization.

"I was fascinated," she recalls, "and the first thing I knew, I was reading all kinds of books about early Indians, and my future career had been decided."

THAT FIRST book also determined Lilli's future college.

"I don't remember the exact title of the book or the author's name," she says, "but one thing I do remember is that the writer was a graduate of the University of New Mexico. That made me decide, right then and there, it was the school for me."

"Besides," she adds, "what better place is there to study

Marin Teen-Ager Finds Study Of American Indians Fascinating

We Can Learn Much From Redmen, Lilli Sommer Of Woodacre Believes

Indians than New Mexico?"

And why should anyone study Indians?

"I'M CONVINCED," she answers, "that if you study the Indians of the past and how they lived, you will also come up with a lot of solutions to the problems of today. They were far from dumb, and they had a lot of answers that we've forgotten."

But back to her favorites, the Miwoks of Marin.

"They represented a really basic step in mankind's evolution," she says, "the kind of culture that is virtually non-existent now."

So primitive, indeed, were Marin Miwoks, she says, that very little is known of them today.

"WE DO KNOW that they were rather backward people when compared to other American Indians," she says. "They lacked even some of the most basic rudiments. It was this unfamiliarity with social mores and tools that was very likely responsible for their inability to adjust to a different way of life brought to California by the white man."

With the arrival of the early Spaniards, she says, the Miwoks fell upon hard times that decimated their ranks. Disease, famine and exploitation by the white man virtually wiped out the tribe.

The coastal Miwoks, she says, had lived in small scattered family groups with no large tribal centers. They had numerous dialects. They lived completely off the land without cultivation, existing on what could be found easily without undue exertion. They were usually unclothed.

IN APPEARANCE, they were short, stocky, with long black hair.

Hygienic standards were low. One custom of the Miwok was to literally plaster himself with mud to keep warm during cold spells.

They were not nomads. Seldom did they stray more than a mile or two from the place where they were born.

Their weapons were rather crude bows and arrows, spears and stone knives. Arrowheads were of obsidian and chert.

BUT IN ONE field the Miwok excelled — basketry.

"Their basket-work is considered among the very finest done by American Indians," Lilli says.

Much of the information about the Miwoks of Marin must come indirectly, through studies of their somewhat more progressive cousins in other areas such as the Lake Miwoks near Clear Lake and yet another Miwok branch near Yosemite.

But from time to time, mounds are uncovered in Marin County that yield artifacts and information about the Miwoks.

LILLI SOMMER is a frequent searcher for and excavater of such mines. As a result she has put together a small personal collection of arrowheads, beads, stone knives, charm stones, pottery, etc.

"Every mound is completely different," she says. "Some are shallow, some are deep. Some yield much, some very little. Some pieces are virtually intact, others badly shattered and decayed."

THIS SUMMER, Lilli is working at the Louise A. Boyd Natural Science Museum in San Rafael where her duties have included the teaching of two classes — one in nature secrets for 6 and 7-year-olds, and another on the Marin Indians for the junior high school level.

THE SCENE IS the Louise A. Boyd Natural Scien c Museum where Lilli Sommer, here holding tongs used by early Marin Indians in removing coals from their fires, is working this summer. Young Seamus Hamilton, 15 months old, seems to have mistaken a Miwok seed-beating basket for a hat. Other baskets were used by Indians as containers for foodstuffs.

The skeleton and skulls are those of Miwok Indians, and the baskets (the fringe is composed of quail topknots) are representative of the kind of possessions buried with the tribe members.

Woodacre Girl Delves Deeply Into History Of The Miwoks Of Marin

Enrollment in the Marin Indian course, a six-week class, was disappointingly small.

"I think most of the potential students in this age group were enrolled in regular summer school," she says.

Nevertheless, Lilli enjoyed the teaching experience and conducted her students on field trips so that they, too, could enjoy the excitement of the hunt for Indian artifacts.

LILLI HAS BEEN both a paid employee and, on her own time, an unpaid volunteer at the Boyd Museum.

Her duties have ranged from staffing the sales desk to collecting insects, and from serving as a guide to packaging deer and seal food.

"It is my first summer at the museum and I have enjoyed it," she says. "I hope I'll be working there in future summers."

But there are others—teaching, field work, National Park Service careers, etc.

"I haven't decided just exactly what I want to do," she says, "except I want to be an anthropologist."

And study Indians.

THE MIWOKS WERE a primitive tribe, but their basketwork, Lilli Sommer tells 6-year-old Davy Dunlop, was among the finest done by any American Indians. Davy has his hand on a large berry-gathering basket, while an oval water basket rests on a winnowing basket. Miwok tools were much cruder than their baskets, as demonstrated by the mortar and pestle he'd by Lilli.

VIEWS COME FIRST with residents of Porto Bello West on the San Rafael Canal off San Pedro Road. Florence Huber is no exception. While interior decorating is her business, she still feels you must complement the great outdoors.

A Townhouse On The Canal

Porto Bello West Home Of Decorator Has Charm

The Porto Bello West waterfront townhouse in San Rafael of Florence Huber, decorator and a member of the National Homes Fashion League, has an unusual story.

First, the developers selected Mrs. Huber to furnish one of their models. Then Mrs. Huber became so enthralled with the waterfront setting that she purchased the model and kept the furniture intact.

Located on the deep water San Rafael Channel to the Bay, there is an ever-changing panorama to be viewed from the living, dining rooms, kitchen or patio. The location, close to everything, and yet in an isolated world of its own, is most restful.

TO VISIT THE charming Porto Bello West townhouse, one enters through a pleasing entry hall that Mrs. Huber has furnished graciously with a hanging console below an antique black and gold mirror. White terrazo vinyl tile floors and white walls form a contrast for pictures which are well selected and beautifully arranged.

Focal point of the living room is a 10-foot green and white damask linen sofa flanked by a tiered square lamp table and stunning bronze lamp. It has a matching love seat. Barrel chairs in antique green velvet complement the coffee table of pecan wood and the soft beige carpets installed throughout the home.

Accessories are one of Mrs. Huber's special delights, and she uses them with great effectiveness. Particularly good looking is a wrought iron mirror, an import from Spain. A raised

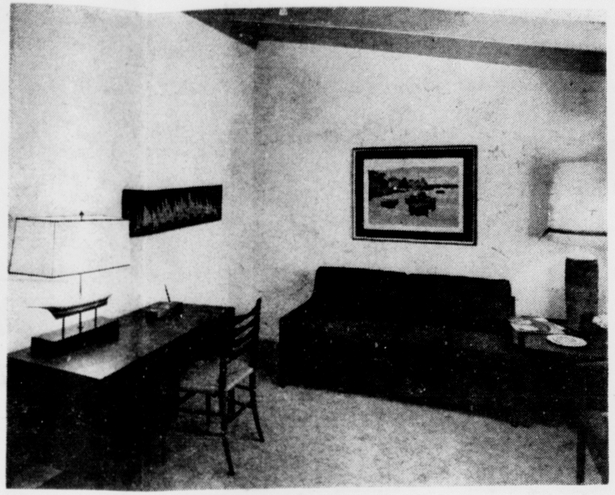
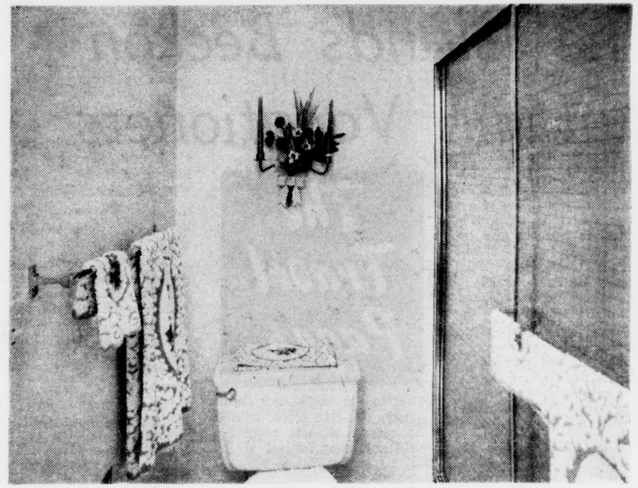
THE INTRICATE CEILING arrangement adds charm to the living room of Florence Huber's Porto Bello West townhouse which the decorator originally furnished as a model, but liked so well that she bought it as a home for herself — and kept the furnishings intact.



THE DEN AS furnished by Mrs. Huber can also double as a guest bedroom when there is company. Again the accent is on warmth and comfort.



THE BATH IN the master bedroom dressing suite of the Porto Bello West townhouse home is spacious, modern and very easily maintained.

THE DINING AREA of Florence Huber's townhouse is a pleasant place for informal dining by a twosome or more, with its handsome wood furniture and the hand-wrought lamp in bronze. It is compact and convenient for the hostess.

THE DINING ROOM, convenient to the small but thoroughly efficient kitchen, has an oval table and side chairs upholstered in moss green. A handmade brass chandelier in the contemporary mood adds a soft glow. The dining and living rooms both open to the deck and patio.

A small den is furnished comfortably in Danish theme with a small compact sofa upholstered in the moss green, which converts to a double bed. Teak desk and chest makes this an ideal guest room when needed, and it doubles at other times for television, reading or homework.

THE MASTER suite has its own private patio banked with agapanthus and nandina. The room is a meld of turquoise and green from large dressing room and bath to double bed and floral wing chair. A pecan desk is an elegant copy of early Colonial days and lends a friendly and substantial air to the room.

Mrs. Huber has a garage and an additional parking space.

Porto Bello West is a complex of 52 two and three-bedroom townhouses developed by the San Rafael Newport Co. which started work some two years ago and recently completed the final homes in the development. Homes range from $32,500 to $47,500.

The Islands Beckon Autumn Vacationers

The Travel Pages

All you have to do is plan your trip to coincide with the major island festival, Aloha Week. It's held on several scenically different resort islands, all perfect for holidaying in the 50th state.

The most concentrated Aloha Week festivities are on Oahu, the capital island and site of Waikki beach, opening Oct. 14 with a presentation of the Hawaiian royal court at Iolani palace at 8 p.m.

THE FOLLOWING day, Oct. 15 at 10 a.m., a two-hour floral parade will take place. It will be capped off that night by all-islands song festival at Iolani palace.

Flower lovers will want to see the elaborate orchid show at the Honolulu International Center Oct. 14 through 16.

The Molokai-to-Oahu outrigger canoe race starts at sunrise Oct. 16 and winds up at Waikki beach around noon that day. That night a brightly costumed pageant of ancient Hawaii goes on by torchlight and moonlight at the Waikiki outdoor shell.

The following day brings exhibits of Hawaiian crafts and culture at Ulu Mau Hawaiian Village, across from the Ala Moana shopping center, one of the world's largest. These village activities, perfect for the camera fan, continue throughout the week.

OTHER HIGHPOINTS of the Aloha fanfare on Oahu include a Polynesian festival Oct. 18 and an international pageant the following night. The first presents dances, songs and music of the Pacific triangle, the second brings exotic dances, songs and music of Japan, China, the Phillippines and other far countries from which people long ago migrated to Hawaii.

"Aloha, Neighbor" is scheduled Oct. 20. The next night brings the hoolaulea or street festival with a "rainbow of races" entertaining at outdoor platforms in Waikiki Oct. 21.

NEIGHBOR ISLAND Aloha Week dates are Oct. 23 through 29 for both Maui and Hawaii islands, Oct. 27 through 30 for Lanai island, Oct. 8 through 15 on Kauai. Thus it's very possible to take in several celebrations on different islands, sandwiching exceedingly rewarding sightseeing in between the colorful Aloha rites.

It's small wonder that Aloha Week now draws vacationers from around the world, as well as being a favorite time for Islanders to enjoy the Polynesian pomp and pageantry which this year honors beloved Hawaiian Prince Kuhio.

BAREFOOT HAWAIIAN youngsters sell their handmade coconut hats to tourists at Hauula on the north shore of the island of Oahu, center of Aloha Week activities in October.

Time Growing Short For Raft Trips On Stanislaus

According to the reported results of core drill samples, there is an estimated eight million dollars worth of gold in the gravels below the confluence of the South Fork with the Stanislaus River's Middle Fork.

Several companies are mining feverishly to salvage this last remnant of the precious metal before this beautiful area is completely inundated by the rising waters of the "New Melones Dam." Construction has already begun on the dam at a site below "Robinson's Ferry." Gold panning and skin diving for nuggets is being actively pursued although most commercial work is done by floating dredge pumps.

The beautiful Stanislaus wild river area will be open to the public for perhaps one more season, according to the American River Touring Assn. Three different white water guides and outfitters are running regular tours for the public with one and two-day raft trips beginning above Vallecito down thru the gold fields.

A Story Of Courage

A LONG WAY UP — The Story of Jill Kinmont by E. G. Valens, Harper & Row, 245 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Lee Cadwallader.

Before the annual Snow Cup race at Alta, Colo., in 1955, Jill Kinmont was accepted as one of the country's finest skiers and as a prospective member of the U.S. 1956 Winter Olympic team.

However, during the women's slalom event she started her pre-jump, over a four-foot high knoll two or three seconds too late, ". . . crashed onto the snow, slid and spun and tumbled another 50 feet and slammed into one of the spectators."

Her spinal cord was severed at the fifth cervical vertebra and she was completely and permanently paralyzed from the shoulders down.

She managed to use her hands only after much physical therapy and with the aid of some instruments made especially for her.

Mill Valley author E. G. Valens masterfully tells the story of her ski training before the accident, her subsequent medical and therapeutic treatment, and the psychological adjustment she and her family made to her handicap.

This is not just another sensational life story "as told to . . . " There was never a moment when I doubted that the story was following the facts, but the character study was so deep and the narrative flow so strong that I read until the wee hours to finish it in one sitting.

After reading the unusually accurate dust jacket blurb, it seemed to me that the Kinmonts must be a remarkable family. But after reading the book, it seems to me that the author, too, must be an outstanding human being — in addition to being a fine writer.

Valens shows true insight into such difficult characters as the extroverted competitive athlete on the one hand and the introverted homemaker on the other.

But his greatest feat is to make the reader honestly accept Jill's handicap and the handicap of her friends.

THE SMILE ON the face of Jill Kinmont after her near-fatal skiing mishap was indicative of the courage with which the young athlete met the fate that ended her sports career and nearly cost her her life. Mill Valley writer E. G. Valens tells her story in "A Long Way Up," and this photo is among the illustrations.

Our Reviewers Report

Fearsome Seas

AGE OF EXPLORATION by John R. Hale and editors of Time-Life Books, Time Inc., 185 pages. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

"Age of Exploration" is another in the Time-Life series of "Great Ages of Man." Like its predecessors, it is slick, beautifully illustrated, well written.

The period covered is roughly that from 1420 to 1620, when Europeans probed far seas to round Africa to the Orient and to find a "New World." The eight chapters, each accompanied by a picture essay, recapture much of the combination of fear and brave venture that sent Italian, Portuguese, Spanish, Dutch and English explorers into waters not even Viking knorrs had ever dared.

The urge that drove them on, the ships they used, the primitive aids to navigation — all are described and clearly illustrated in "Age of Exploration."

John R. Hale and his coauthors have succeeded in putting into one attractive volume a veritable Baedecker of the "fearsome seas" of that great age and of the lands that emerged into European knowledge only because of the intrepidity of renaissance man. It is a book to give and to keep, a book for pleasant reading and ready reference — and one that may well whet the reader's appetite to learn more about those venturesome explorers and what they found.

Life In The Deep

GUIDE TO THE UNDERWATER by Bill Slosky and Art Walker, Sterling, 192 pages, $10. Reviewed by Robert Cadwallader.

Two marine biologists present underwater life along the coastal and tropical waters of the Virgin Islands in this handsome volume.

The information given should serve a broad range of underwater enthusiasts — from beginners looking for basic instruction to avid snorkelers, spearfishermen, fish, coral and shell collectors, photographers, and even treasure hunters.

There are over 150 photographs in color and many in black and white. Description of various underwater photographic equipment and technical data on the photographs are included.

The Calendar

ALL ABOUT THE MONTHS by Maymie R. Krythe, Harper & Row, 221 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

Using much the same approach as with her earlier "all about" books concerning Christmas and American holidays, Mrs. Krythe has collected a considerable amount of information that makes for interesting reading and also promises to serve as a helpful reference source.

From its pages, you can learn how the name of each month originated, its most significant events down through history, its symbolic jewel and flower, its most prominent birthdays, its legends, etc.

The data on the jewels and the flowers are especially detailed.

The book should be especially helpful to those charged with the responsibility for club programs and as a source of ideas for writers. But, without any encyclopedic pretensions, it is nevertheless a book that might prove useful on any reference shelf.

Our Culture

ANTHROPOLOGY: THE STUDY OF MAN by E. Adamson Hoebel, McGraw-Hill, 591 pages, $12.50. Reviewed by Larry Kramer Jr.

Professor Hoebel has revised and expanded "Man in the Primitive World" into an introductory textbook on the concept and development of culture.

Textbooks don't generally lend themselves to casual reading and this one is no exception. The two-column format, the footnotes, the academic jargon and the tiny type used for picture captions are forbidding to the general reader.

For the person with a layman's interest in the development of culture, this work could serve as a reference book. The glossary is helpful and each chapter has a critical bibliography of selected readings simplifying follow-up in specific areas of interest.

A Novel That Maugham Disliked

THE MAKING OF A SAINT by W. Somerset Maugham, Farrar, Straus and Giroux, $4.95, 351 pages. Reviewed by Laurel Shapiro.

". . . to recreate the past needs not only a vast knowledge but an effort of imagination that is hardly to be expected in the young . . . I wrote it in Capri during the long vacation, and such was my ardour that I had myself awakened every morning at six and wrote with perseverance till hunger forced me to break off and have breakfast. I had at least the sense to spend the rest of the morning in the sea."

Such was Maugham's sardonic comment on his second novel, first published in 1898 when he was a youth of 23. It was not until his recent death that this all but forgotten romance of medieval Italy could be revived, for he determinedly surpressed its reprinting during his lifetime.

Not surprisingly, this youthful tale has much in its favor. Slight as it is, one cannot miss hints of masterpieces Maugham was to write.

For above all, Maugham was a storyteller, and this talent shows up strongly. The action is lively, the story advances, and although dialogue and shifts of scene are clumsy compared to the excellences that distinguish Maugham in his prime, rewarding glimpses of his dryness shine through the florid style now and then.

Told in the first person, it is of a violent, dramatic period in a young nobleman's life that ends in his becoming a monk. In this lusty time of the Medici, passions ran full tilt, life was cheap, men rapacious, and women, evidently, incapable of fidelity. Entertaining fare in young Maugham's enthusiastic hands, and it is hard to sympathize with his later decision to keep it from the public eye.

The story of the suppression, of much interest in itself, is told in the the foreword. Considering today's dreary flood of tape-recorded books and non-books one can but admire such singular modesty!

The Vanishing Art Of Bread Baked At Home

SUNSET COOK BOOK OF BREADS by editors of Sunset Books and Sunset Magazine, Lane, 96 pages, $1.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

The baking of yeast breads is an almost lost art in most American homes, to the despair of those who remember the fragrance and the taste of loaves fresh from the kitchen oven.

There follows the basic bread recipe with variations, after which you graduate to rolls, sticks, pretzels, croissants, brioche and bagels.

There is a chapter then on sweet yeast breads, including coffee cakes, Danish pastry, and special Easter and Christmas breads.

The chapter on the sourdoughs tells you how to make a starter, discusses camp cookery with sourdough, and then goes on to cover rolls, muffins, biscuits and scones.

The concluding chapter deals with the quick breads made without yeast, and this may get the greatest use of all. Stollen, blueberry coffee cake, Portuguese honey bread, date-nut bread and Irish soda bread give you some idea why.

The book is well illustrated and is typical of the Sunset series in its general excellence, being both a well-selected collection and a comprehensible one.

A Critic From Within Speaks On Christianity And Society

By DON KEOWN

THE WRITER'S MANUAL by Archibald C. Jordan, World. 387 pages, $4.

William Stringfellow is a lawyer who does not hesitate to criticize the bar, a religious lay leader who points out the faults of the churches and a liberal who is outspoken about the shortcomings of those who function in the social and political arenas under that banner.

He first attracted attention with his "My People is the Enemy," the product of seven years of residence in an East Harlem slum tenement and of an unusually perceptive mind for evaluating his firsthand observations of America's racial dilemma.

He offers his newest book "Dissenter in a Great Society" as "a Christian view of America in crisis."

It is basically a set of theological comments, rather than social criticism or political analyses, he tells us, although admitting the separation is difficult.

The essays, he asserts, "embody an attempt to respond in terms of versatility of Christ's Gospel to particular aspects of the American social crisis, especially as it has been manifest since 1964." Poverty, race conflict, ideological differences are some of those aspects.

Americans, he believes, have been misled as to the basic conflict confronting the world today. It is not communism vs. capitalism, he declares, for, in fact, neither of those systems any longer exists on this globe in anything approaching a pure form. Rather, he says, the confrontation is between those who give top priority to property rights, and those who would award that status to human rights.

The property rights adherents are in the ascendancy, he adds, and those who suffer most are the poor without property and therefore without rights.

There is nothing inherently sinful about property or its ownership, Stringfellow continues. What is wrong is the idolatry of property or of its substitute — money. When wealth becomes the measuring stick for assessing a person's worth, then man is in trouble with himself and with God, the author tells us pointedly. He is worshiping a false idol.

The book is a stinging attack on rampant materialism, moral complacency and apathy, the police state mentality, the white supremacy syndrome, the pressures for conformity.

Stringfellow scores his fellow attorneys for a reluctance to practice the kind of law that protects the poor and the racial minorities. He attacks churches for their tardiness and timidity in becoming actively involved in the very kind of controversial causes that would have attracted the participation of Jesus Christ. Liberals are chastized for their failure to comprehend the real depth of the despair from which the Negro reacts.

At the same time, Stringfellow urges Christian forbearance and love toward those with whom we disagree, even while we labor to counteract their abuses and correct the injustices they inflict.

The book is a clear and challenging summarization of one thinking man's assessment of where America stands today — at a crossroads, one fork leading toward further social turmoil, the other toward a true Christian-motivated society, although to reach the latter destination many obstacles must first be passed.

The closing series of essays under the general title "The Orthodoxy of Radical Involvement" are the most theological in tone and content, and are sometimes obscure and difficult to follow. But generally, Stringfellow is very much to the point — so much so that the reader who does not wriggle just a bit in embarrassment will be a rare one.

DUKE UNIVERSITY Prof. Archibald C. Jordan's "The Writer's Manual" is not a guidebook on creative writing, but instead a basic text on good grammar and the mechanics of our language.

For those who have never been too certain of the rules of syntax, punctuation, sentence structure, etc., or who have found themselves becoming somewhat hazy through the passing of years or disuse of the lessons they once learned in their English classes, the book is a good one.

It is a simple, no-nonsense grammar tool, reasonably priced, that presents a great deal of practical information in a concise and easily understood manner. The rules are not just stated, but illustrated as well, and exercises are provided to test the reader-student's progress.

"LIBERTY LEADING THE PEOPLE"

THE WORLD OF DELACROIX by Tom Prideaux and the editors of Time-Life Books, Time Inc., 196 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Lee Cadwallader.

In this volume, nearly 125 illustrations of Delacroix's works are presented in picture essays which alternate with eight chapters of text. The format is nine-by-12-inches, allowing such detailed views of larger pieces that one can even detect deterioration in the original.

One cannot help but be impressed with the low price and high quality of this book.

New For The Junior Readers

Some new books for the junior readers:

In the pattern of her highly successful "The Wolves of Willoughby Chase," Joan Aiken (daughter of Conrad Aiken) has created another book with double appeal. "Nightbirds on Nantucket" (Doubleday, $3.25) will be regarded as spirited adventure by youngsters and as a delightful spoof of the books of a bygone era by older readers. For both age groups, it's a whale of a lot of fun — with an unusual whale among the chief characters. Miss Aiken is earning herself a specialized following for her highly individualistic books.

"Come and See Me" (Doubleday, $2.50) by Mary Kennedy is a small book based upon the familiar invitation from one child to another to join him or her in play. The author's background as a poet is apparent for the simple text has a lyrical quality. Illustrations by Martha Alexander are also simple and delicate. A special treat for the little pre-school or kindergarten girl.

"Topsail Island Treasure" (Harcourt, Brace & World, $3.50) by Stephen W. Meader appeals to the 12 and 13-year-old boys' interest in nature and liking for adventure. The scene is a state park on the New Jersey coast where wildlife flourishes. The mystery and adventure involve a legend of buried pirate's treasure. It is exciting, and also informative. And Don Douglas, the young hero, is a likeable and interesting lad.

ROSIE, the pink whale, a whaling ship captain, and the skipper's 9-year-old daughter, Dutiful Penitence, are only a few of the strange characters to appear in Joan Aiken's latest book, "Nightbirds on Nantucket." Illustration is by Robin Jacques.

Most impressive and timely is "Fall Is Here!" by Dorothy Sterling (Natural History Press, $3.25) for children up to 10 years. The story of the "fall of the leaf" and the wonders it works on plant and animal life is told in lively, clear prose that reveals the mystery of the changing season in full. A great book for reading aloud — the whole family will learn and wonder. Dedicated young nature lovers will want this handsome big book (the many striking illustrations are by Winifred Lubell) for permanent reference.

Girls, 10 to 14, if they've been brought up in ranch-style houses, will be enchanted by the contrast and romantic adventures of "Agatha on Stage" by Abigail Ann Hamblen (Van Nostrand, $3.50). Abigail's mother inherits an old inn in a country town, and the barn that comes with it provides a place to use the trunks full of old costumes found in the attic.

"Wild Geese Calling" (Dutton, $3.50) by Robert Murphy is the publisher's Junior Animal Book Award-winner for 1966. The subject is the friendship of a lonely boy and a wild Canadian gander. The setting is the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge on the Texas Gulf coast. Murphy tells the story gently and realistically, with excellent descriptive passages and a wealth of nature knowledge. John Kaufmann does a fine job with the illustrations so important to a book of this kind.

Sleuths & Suspense

THE CRIMSON MADNESS OF LITTLE DOOM by Mark McShane, Doubleday, 186 pages, $3.50. Reviewed by Don Keown.

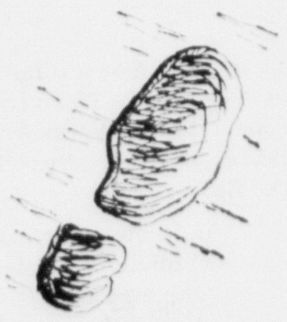
Mark McShane has blended expertly a rustic and forbidding setting rich in atmosphere, a cast of kooky and interesting characters, some wonderfully witty touches of macabre black humor and a highly ingenious plot to produce this Crime Club Selection that the publisher quite properly has designated as "something special."

The remote and gloomy coastal village of Little Doom in Cornwall has just 15 inhabitants.

Poison pen letters, postmarked Little Doom, begin arriving. A death results. And the victim's husband set out with dogged determination to discover the identity of the writer and wreak his own kind of justice.



The drunken party that brings the whole thing to a climax is both hilarious and terrifying.

On The Stereo Scene

By JOHN SUNIER

BACH: Chromatic Fantasy & Fugue; HANDEL: Chaconne with Variations: MOZART: Fantasia in C Minor; PESCETTI: Sonata No. 4 — Sophie Svirsky, piano — Monitor Stereo MCS 2086:

This distinguished Russian pianist is a recent find for U.S. record collectors. Her career and musical field have much in common with the late Wanda Landowska, except that Miss Svirsky's chosen instrument is the piano instead of the harpsichord.

The work by the 18th Century Venetian composer Pescetti is here given its very first recording. Listen carefully to what happens to the simple little theme in the first movement and you'll not only have a good chuckle, you'll also know this will probably be its last recording too.

HAYDN: Sonatas for Keyboard, Volume II—Thirteen Middle and Late Works — Rena Kyriakou, piano — Vox Stereo SVBX 574:

Continuing their completion of every complete collection of music anyone would ever want to have, Vox has issued the second of an eventual four volumes devoted to Haydn's sonatas.

This set begins with "Sonata No. 21 in C Major" and ends with "No. 51 in D Major." Those missing are covered in the other three volumes.

I know Haydn is very "in" again, but somehow I am even less excited about a complete Haydn sonata set than I am about a complete Haydn symphonies set. There just doesn't appear to be the variety between the pieces to avoid boredom. Contrast the 500-odd Scarlatti sonatas, every one different.

But don't let me dissuade the Haydn lovers; I've just found that these sonatas are much more fun to play yourself than to listen to someone else play. Stereo sound places the piano at some distance for a clear but concert-hall-effect.

HAYDN: Vol. I (Sonatas 27, 44, 36, 28) Monitor Stereo MCS 2094. HAYDN: Vol II (Sonatas 23, 34, 49, Fantasy in C Major) Monitor Stereo MCS 2095. HAYDN: Vol. III (Sonatas 20, 21, 32 & 33) Monitor Stereo MCS 2096. HAYDN: Vol. IV (Sonatas No. 52 & 59) Monitor Stereo MCS 2097. Vol. I, II & III—Sophie Svirsky, piano; Volume IV — Nadia Reisenberg, piano.

This looks suspiciously like another "Complete Haydn Sonatas" effort. There are some advantages over the preceding album. Since each disc is sold separately, those already owning some of these sonatas can pick and choose.

Many record collectors prefer each disc in a separate sleeve on their shelf instead of all thrown into a box.

Now that Vox seems to forego the record-changer sequence on their multi-disc albums, each disc might as well be in a separate container. It must be turned over for the second side anyway. Another advantage to some listeners might be the performance and sound on this Monitor series. The former is a bit more muscular than Miss Kyriakou, and the latter is closer-miked with more presence.

Time To Think Of Fall Color

Berried Shrubs Can Go In Now For Later Enjoyment

Not that there isn't plenty to do when we want it—it's simply that August weather is more conducive to dreaming than to making dreams come true.

We should resist late summer's euphoria, however, and with August virtually over, start looking ahead to fall — planning and planting the harvest of color which can be reaped during that wonderful season.

Berried shrubs such as pyracantha, cotoneaster and barberry can go in now, as can various herbaceous plants which contribute the proper autumnal colors, not to mention selected roses which help to make California's fall "a second spring."

The state highway landscapers have discovered pyracantha in recent years and many an ugly freeway cut has been beautified with the semi-prostrate Santa Cruz Pyracantha. Applying this lesson to home use, you can make a barren, sun-baked hillside blaze with autumn berry color; or fill an empty border with more of the same.

The taller pyracanthas provide spot color against fences and walls or in taller border plantings. Practically all the better varieties are available as espaliered shrubs in both one and five-gallon containers. The latter give you a head start for color this fall, providing both a decorative and practical approach to landscaping a wall.

THE GARDENER has a wide selection of pyracantha from which to choose. Many good new varieties have been developed in recent years, with larger berries in a wider range of colors. You'll find brilliant orange, orange-red and red berries to choose from.

The cotoneaster provides a background of color for fall. Their berries are not so brilliant as those of the pyracantha, but the shrubs have so many landscape uses that they have a cumulative effect in any given neighborhood.

You find prostrate, semi-prostrate and anything-but-prostrate forms of cotoneaster, the latter useful as tall (and broad) backdrops or screens in open landscapes.

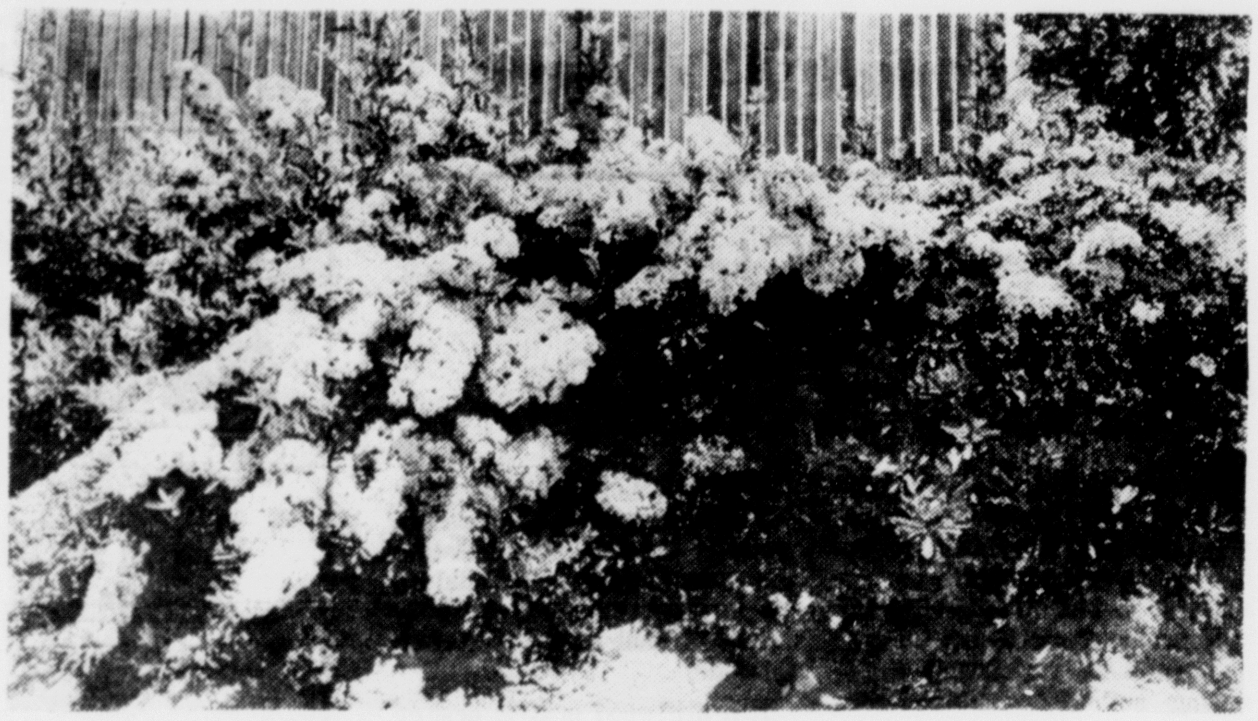
Cotoneasters are mostly evergreen, but a few forms are deciduous and some of these provide not only berry color, but foliage color as well, before dropping their leaves in fall. As with pyracantha, berry color is orange or red or somewhere in between.

LAST BUT NOT least of fall's berried shrubs are the barberries. These do double duty in the fall parade, providing both berry and foliage color. Some barberries produce a blue-black berry and are evergreen. These have their place in the garden, but they are not for fall.

The Japanese Barberry and its strains are what interest us here, providing brilliant fall foliage and then—after the leaves drop — showing a bountiful crop of small, scarlet berries, which linger well into winter.

Among the herbaceous plants for fall color, the chrysanthemum is everyone's favorite and you can plant full-grown plants now from nursery containers. Since we are considering fall color here, we put emphasis on the yellow and bronze-flowered Mums, but all colors are available and all have their places.

So do the Dwarf Dahlias and various Marigolds which can still be planted for almost "instant color" this time of year.



THE BRIGHT berries of the pyracantha can make a more colorful autumn in Marin gardens. Berry color ranges from the traditional autumn orange to brilliant scarlet, with shades in between. Other berry color can be found in the cotoneaster and the barberry families.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

The Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- Lift gladiolus bulbs when the tops have turned brown. Cut the stems about one inch above the corms, then dust with insecticide and store in a cool dry place until planting time.
- Potted plants require more food than those in the ground. Figure on two feedings for every one you'd give to the same plant growing in the open ground.
- Plant sweet peas at once if you want to cut bouquets from them at Christmas time.
- Water thoroughly this month. Dig down a few inches after watering and make sure the soil is wet. If not, water some more.
- Plant winter stocks, cyclamen, cineraria, violas and snapdragons now for winter color.

Redwood—Stained, Or Natural State?

Should redwood, used outdoors as it generally is, be left in its natural state? Or should it be finished in some way?

And if so, with what and how?

These are questions which get no unanimous replies, even among authorities. There are some who maintain that redwood which is allowed to weather naturally takes on a series of attractive colors that no finish, clear or pigmented, can duplicate. Others say that water repellants, with or without coloring, prevent unsightly discolorations. And some swear by bleaches, oil and various types of stains.

ON ONE POINT, there is fairly general agreement. Varnishes and similar clear finishes which rest on top of the wood are not good for exterior redwood, even though they may look fine when first applied. They are inclined to deteriorate after a year or two, sometimes turn yellow and require more attention than the finishes which penetrate the material.

Here are some facts about redwood which may help you decide whether it should be treated:

If redwood is allowed to weather naturally, it usually will become darker and eventually turn to a driftwood gray. The damper the area, the quicker these changes will occur. In exceptionally dry sections, there may be no darkening at all, with the wood finally taking on a kind of silvery-tan.

IF REDWOOD is treated with a water repellant, it eventually will become tan or silvery gray without darkening. While redwood is extremely rot-resistant it can be discolored by mildew. To prevent this, use a water repellant that contains a mildewcide.

If a driftwood gray is desired immediately, then a good quality bleach is the answer. Here again, it is good practice to use a bleach that contains a mildewcide.

If a dark color is wanted, treating with boiled linseed oil is recommended, but not in areas where there is considerable dampness. It is also important that the oil be rubbed into the wood and not permitted to remain on the surface.

If you are looking for some kind of distinct or "off" color, then a pigmented stain will accomplish your objective. However, it is not wise to use it on benches and chairs, since some of the stain may come off on clothing, especially during the first few months after application.

WHILE SOME persons consider it shameful to paint over the interesting texture of redwood, and others believe it will not "take" paint well, the truth is that it is one of the easiest woods to paint because it has no pitch or resins.

When using redwood for a major project, you might consider purchasing the pre-treated type, in stock at some lumber yards and building supply dealers and available on order at others.

BRIGHT IDEAS

By JOE JONES

Now you see it. Now you don't.

The television set, I mean.

These sets have been growing and multiplying, appearing now in almost every room of the home.

It's for the set that's thin enough to fit on a bookshelf. Two double-hinged doors covered with fake book spines hide the set nicely. When you are not viewing a program, close the doors, and presto, it's gone.

These pseudo books can be bought in sheets 39 inches by 47 inches. They are beautifully made and hard to tell from a fine encyclopedia. They are a bit expensive, but not much of the material is needed. Query your stationery store for a source of supply.

Or, if you wish, do it yourself. Cut the spines from any old books. Pick colorful ones, then glue them to the doors.

Shelter From September Sun

Sizzling sunstroke! September heat wave time is coming up again! And you don't have any shade? Don't panic.

Think cool thoughts of sky-blue streams, make yourself an ice-cold lemonade, and start planning your redwood garden shelter.

WHERE'S THE keenest place to waylay whatever stray breezes come along? Out in the middle of the yard? Over in the corner? Or right adjacent to the house?

One thing is sure—you want a roof to keep out the sun's rays, whether they're the tanning variety or the burning kind.

Take your pick: Flat roof? Slat roof? Peaked or pyramid?

Choose the design that blends best with the rest of your house, and that suits your way-out way of living. And be sure to check building codes before you start.

MOST GARDEN shelters are of post-and-beam construction. That makes it easy for the do-it-yourselfer. Others are a bit more complicated — hexagonal plans instead of rectangles, cantilevered shed roofs, gabled roofs, to name just three. But all have the blessed virtue of adding a cooling new way of living to your present routine.

One evening's planning, a weekend of work, and zowie! You're ready to pull out a table, add a couple of chairs, and arrange a big bowl of chilled fresh fruit, for a truly air-conditioned home entertainment center!

Redwood is often used for garden structures because of its beauty, its natural resistance to weather and termites, and its easy workability with hand tools. For your posts or other members in or close to the ground, you'll want to specify an all-heartwood grade to ensure its decay resistance.

IT'S A CHAMPION fighter of termites, too!

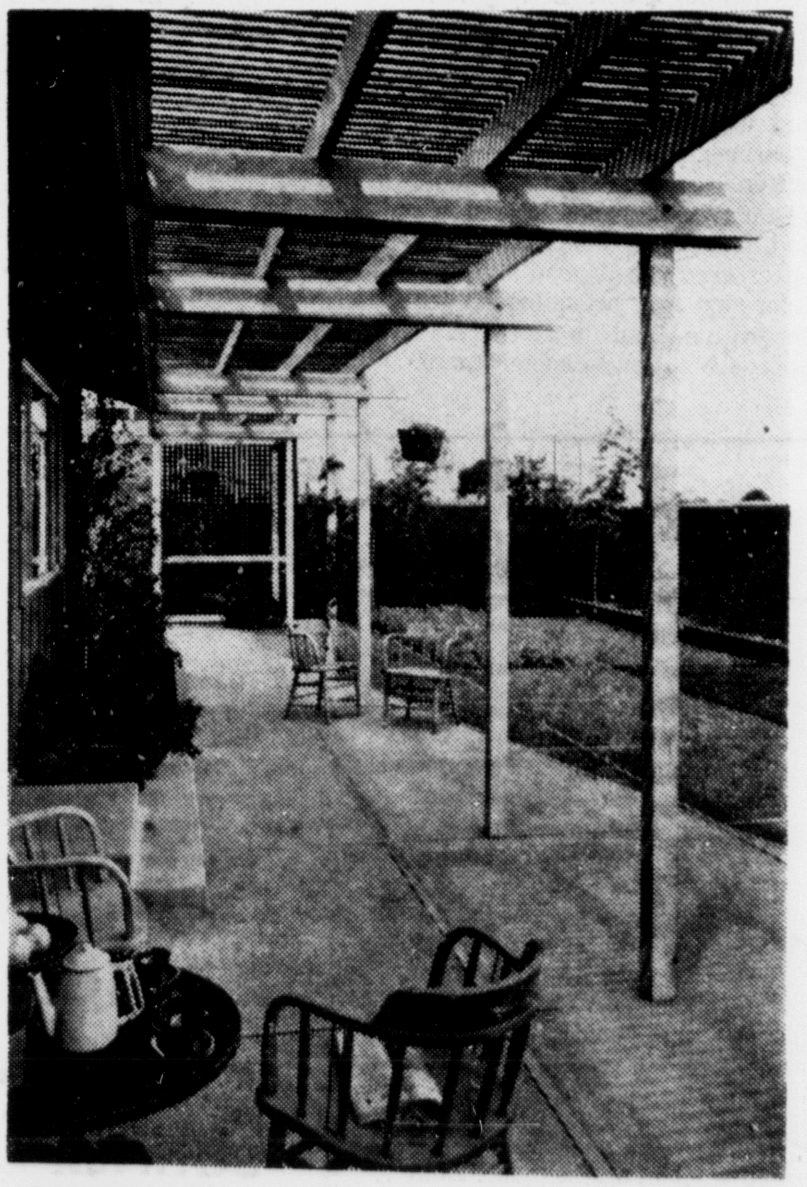
For a data sheet that tells you all about the elements in a garden shelter, write Department PF-5, California Redwood Assn., 617 Montgomery Street, in San Francisco, Calif., 94111, for their free "Building a Redwood Garden Shelter" literature.



ADJACENT TO the home, this redwood garden shelter can double as a patio. Post-and-beam construction is simple for the do-it-yourselfer.

Here's An Easy Method For Finishing Furniture

A piece of unfinished furniture built of pine, Douglas fir, cedar or western hemlock will give a lifetime of excellent service for little cost.

Here's an easy finishing method. First, sand the piece with extra-fine paper or steel wool to remove any fuzz from the surface; dust thoroughly.

Next apply two coats of transparent varnish stain. Varnish stain is a product that combines pigment with varnish so that pre-staining is eliminated.

Allow the first coat to dry thoroughly—at least a day—before applying the second, and sand lightly with 00 steel wool to provide better surface adhesion for the second coat. After buffing with the steel wool, use a tack rag to remove any dust or fuzz.

NEED A tool shed? Make it pretty, as well as useful. This scene-stealer has a Queen Anne roof and pink bevel siding, accents of black wrought iron, large window to light the storeroom, with door opposite. Recessed front creates hideway garden sitting room.

Your New Tool Shed Can Be Both Pretty And Useful

A tool shed standing alone in the garden needs design strength as much as any structure. It's possible to make one "disappear" by building it as part of a fence, attaching it to a side of the garage. But a really attractive structure can be an enormous asset to the yard.

NOW FOR THE beauty treatment: Take a simple box, recess the front to provide space for a tiny sitting nook, add a high peaked Queen Anne roof, put cedar bevel siding on the exterior walls and line the recessed front with shiplap. Then paint the whole thing—except the shingled roof—a sparkling white, petal pink, or daffodil.

Extra fillips can come in the the form of brick flooring in the sitting nook and narrow panels of lacy wrought iron used to frame the front of the nook. Wrought iron can be repeated for a dainty settee and table within the nook.

The storage area, at the back, can be entered by a side door. A short ramp to the door facilitates the moving of heavy equipment, like a power mower. Windows can be set into the side wall opposite and into the rear wall.

DOOR AND windows will be important design elements, however. To be in character, the door should be paneled and the windows divided into several panes. Such windows and doors are stock items, easily obtained at a building materials yard.

Basic frame construction turns out the best storage house. All framing members can be Douglas fir lumber, with either fir or western red cedar used for the exterior siding. Flooring should be poured concrete over a vapor barrier to keep the tool house snug and dry year-long.

Don't forget a lock on the door. If your memory is good, a combination lock is much handier to use than a key.

Country English

Oomph Girl Sheridan Is Back In Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—There's plenty of oomph in the girl yet, as Ann Sheridan amply demonstrates on the set of the new television series, "Pistols and Petticoats."

Ann would like not to be reminded that she was dubbed the "oomph girl" back in the giddy 1930s, when press agents could get away with that sort of thing. She managed to survive such a cognomen and go on to become a serviceable leading lady for Errol Flynn ("Dodge City"), Humphrey Bogart ("They Drive by Night"), Gary Cooper ("Good Sam") and Cary Grant ("I Was a Male War Bride").

HOLLYWOOD hasn't seen much of Ann Sheridan in recent times, so it behooved an alert reporter to find out what had been happening to her. For one thing, she is a bride. This summer she wed her longtime beau, actor Scott McKay.

"We had a marvelous honeymoon in Hawaii," she reported. "We were supposed to stay two weeks, but we stretched it to three. Meanwhile everyone was screaming. I was due back to start the series, and Scott was supposed to be in the East to direct and appear with Nancy Palmer and then Julia Meade in 'Mary, Mary' for summer stock."

It was just eight years ago that Ann turned her back on Hollywood to try her luck on the stage. She said she had been encouraged to do so by producer Ross Hunter, who wanted her to star in a property called "Vermillion O'Toole" first on Broadway and then in films.

THE PROJECT never reached the theater, but Ann did. She toured in "Kind Sir," and her leading man was Scott McKay. That was the start of a romance complicated by the fact that he already had a wife. Ann continued to make her home in New York, appearing in the theater and on television, most recently in the soap opera, "Another World."

Frankly 50, Ann retains her oldtime allure, and she photographs strikingly in color for "Pistols and Petticoats," which will follow Jackie Gleason on CBS Saturday night.

It Will Be Comeback Season For TV With Lots Of Familiar Faces

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Television in September, when the new programs have their premieres, is also reunion time for the audience and a lot of old friends.

This season, in particular, a large number of veterans of old series are hopping back on the television bandwagon for another ride.

MILTON BERLE is trying a comeback with the same format that, overused, slipped down the ratings drain many seasons back. So is Garry Moore, after a shorter absence from the nation's living rooms.

Robert Lansing, star of "12 O'Clock High," playing a brave World War II airman until he was dropped, returns as a clever wartime intelligence operative in "The Man Who Never Was." Sebastian Cabot, once the erudite, rotund sleuth of "Checkmate" is back—as a butler in "Family Affair."

TELEVISION, a fickle employer, has been first kind and then cruel to one of the first great stars created by the public—Imogene Coca. The slight, shy comedienne shot to fame along with Sid Caesar 16 years ago in "Your show of Shows." After that ran its course, subsequent shows never seemed able to capture Miss Coca's special gifts.

A couple of seasons back there was a comedy series called "Grindl," that had Miss Coca playing a mildly madcap working girl with a different job each week. Somehow—maybe because the scripts didn't match Miss Coca's very special talents or maybe because it was overpowered by the rival Ed Sullivan hour—"Grindl" barely limped through its allotted 13 weeks.

IMOGENE COCA
A cavewoman now

Now Miss Coca, undisturbed, is back again, playing a cavewoman, circa 1,000,000 B.C., in CBS' "It's About Time." The public will decide during the next couple of months whether this is Miss Coca's cup of tea. She is one of six leading characters, so success or failure will be spread around.

MISS COCA explained about her current acting interest. The show, she said, concerns a pair of astronauts who, returning to earth, accidentally break the "time barrier" and land in our world of about a million years ago. She plays the spouse of Joe E. Ross and they have two children.

"I'm a little bit surprised," confessed Miss Coca, "that it is about 80 times harder to do a small part—and I've a small part in this series—than a big one. You do a couple of lines here and there. And you worry about them more than when you have lots to do."

The show reaches for big laughs with broad comedy. On the day of the interview, Imogene was involved in a wedding—wearing more or less contemporary bridal finery—because she heard about marriage from the astronauts and liked the idea.

Big-Time Ballplayer Is Now A Day-Time Actor

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Johnny Beradino, star of the daytime "General Hospital" series, is a widower who lives alone in a rustic English style Beverly Hills home and thrives on Italian food and Italian singers.

Because his daily video series is live, the actor is under more pressure than most. He's up every morning at 6 a.m. and reports to ABC-TV by 8. Rehearsals take up most of the day before shooting begins "live" on tape.

DURING THE noon break Johnny and other members of the cast dash to nearby Griffith Park for round-robin tennis. Then it's back to the set and more work.

Beradino shucks off his doctor's tunic at the studio, showers and changes into street clothes —usually sports jacket, slacks and sports shirt — to tool his costly sedan toward Beverly Hills.

He stops for dinner at Dominicks, La Scala or Mateos, three of Los Angeles' finest Italian restaurants. He is especially fond of scampi and veal dishes which he dispatches in huge quantities.

After that, it's back to his empty house.

ACTUALLY, HE has two houses. The main part of the home is a two-bedroom, one-bath abode decorated with white rugs and comfortable furniture. The colors are primarily blue, white and variety of tans and browns.

The second house is one enormous room in the back of his lot complete with bath and kitchen facilities.

"It's like a mountain cabin with high-beamed ceiling and a fireplace," Johnny says. "That is where I do all my entertaining, which usually consists of pasta parties for a few close friends."

JOHNNY HAS two daughters Antoinette, 21, and Cynthia, 19, both of whom live in Santa Monica. Both are single and he visits them often.

He was widowed in 1963 and for many months became almost a recluse. Now he is dating again — three or four of the town's prettiest bachelor girls.

"But not actresses," says Johnny with a grin. "you take them out and all they talk about is themselves and their careers. But I usually confine my dates to the weekend."

JOHNNY BERADINO
A life of pressure

"I REALLY don't have time to be lonely," he says. "I concentrate on my work. And on weekends I try to play a little golf or get out to watch the Dodgers play in the summer.

"I play in the Celebrity Game every year against the sports writers and television announcers. So far we're undefeated. I'm happy I made the transition from baseball to acting, but if it had been possible, I'd have spent my whole life playing baseball."

In the coming months Beradino will devote much of this time to campaigning for his longtime friend Ronald Reagan, GOP nominee for governor of California.

Johnny has no pets at home. His busy pace leaves no time to care for a dog or cat.

HE ALSO is a frequenter of the race tracks where he bets prudently. At the moment he also is working on a screenplay for a movie in which he would like to star.

Beradino's facial features reflect a strong and determined character. He hopes someday to move from daytime television to a prime time series and perhaps, later, to the big movie screen.
